FAVREAU DOWN, NOT OUT

Portfolio Switch Indicated

OTTAWA (CP)—Former justice minister Guy Favreau is willing to stay on in some other cabinet post, Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday.

Mr. Pearson told the Commons Mr. Favreau submitted his resignation earlier in the day following receipt of the report dealing with charges of attempted bribery and influence-peddling by federal ministerial aides.

Mr. Pearson said that, "with deep regret," he will advise Governor-General Vanier to accept the resignation.

APPLAUSE

After the announcement of Mr. Favreau's resignation as minister of justice, there was prolonged applause from the Liberal MPs. Mr. Favreau sat at his desk on Mr. Pearson's left, sipping a glass of water. Then Mr. Pearson told the House he has asked Mr. Favreau to remain in the government in some other portfolio. He read a letter from Mr. Favreau agreeing to take some other cabinet post.

Mr. Pearson said, "a man of unimpeachable integrity and unswerving honor."

Comfort on Longest Day

OTTAWA (CP)—Guy Favreau spent the longest hour of his life Tuesday night as he heard his resignation formally announced in the Commons by Prime Minister Pearson and then listened to four opposition speakers discuss his conduct.

Through it all, the 47-year-old Quebec leader of the Liberal party moved about in his green leather chair, sometimes leaning back with a yawn, sometimes cupping his hand in his chin.

He appeared to be making an effort to look relaxed. But his movements were tense and his face drawn. He looked up toward the well-filled galleries, toward the prime minister.

later. He sipped a glass of water when Mr. Pearson announced "with deep regret" that his resignation had been accepted.

Mr. Favreau appeared moved when Mr. Pearson referred to him as "a man of unimpeachable integrity and unswerving honor."

Several Liberal members sent notes to Mr. Favreau. He acknowledged them with an appreciative smile.

He didn't look directly at Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) when the Conservative member followed the prime minister. It was Mr. Nielsen whose disclosures resulted in the Dorion inquiry.

When the last opposition spokesman, Gilles Giguere (Creditiste-Lapointe) had sat down, several Liberal front-benchers went over to Mr. Favreau to speak to him.

In the main corridor, a battery of photographers and reporters waited.

"Was this the toughest day of your career?" asked a reporter.

Mr. Favreau smiled wearily.

"It was."

John D: 'Tap On Wrist'

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker told a Conservative banquet Tuesday Prime Minister Pearson's acceptance of Justice Minister Favreau's resignation was just a "tap on the wrist" and showed "a lack of moral principle."

"Now what has happened? The prime minister stands up tonight and says 'happy days are here again'... the minister of justice sent me his resignation this morning. I accepted it and in a few days I'll be appointing him to another portfolio."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the portfolio change was a "tap on the wrist" and the move "out of justice into another department... can't be justified—you don't become perfection by being transferred."

Was the last hour the longest?

Mr. Favreau nodded. Why did you decide to resign?

"I thought that in the circumstances I would be more useful elsewhere because of the atmosphere that had been created."

Surrounded by reporters amid a forest of microphones, Mr. Favreau decided there was little more he could say.

"But I want to say this. My colleagues, and all of the caucus, led by the prime minister, have been—well, they have been just plain wonderful."

Favreau was justified in thinking, on the basis of evidence available then but not followed up, that a charge would be difficult to prove.

Conduct of then immigration minister Rene Tremblay was "absolutely beyond reproach."

There "cannot be any doubt" that Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to Tremblay, offered a $20,000 bribe to "obstruct the course of justice" in the case of narcotics smuggling suspect Lucien Rivard.

Guy Rouleau, Montreal Liberal MP and then parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, committed a "reprehensible act" in trying to use his influence to get Rivard out of jail on bail, but his action was not criminal.

There is prima facie evidence of an offence under the Criminal Code. Though the investigator did not say who might have committed it.

Andre Letendre, then and still executive assistant to Favreau, was guilty of "reprehensible" but not "malicious" conduct in intervening with Lamontagne on behalf of bail for Rivard.

Guy Lord, special assistant to the justice minister at the time, acted imprudently but not reprehensibly in putting pressure on Mr. Lamontagne.

The RCMP's investigation methods and Commissioner George McClellan's methods of interpreting the evidence in conjunction with the justice minister are criticized.

The RCMP's use of English-language investigators to question French-speaking persons is described as "extraordinary."

There is no doubt that Rivard's wife and three associates—Eddy Lechasseur, an "importer" with a criminal record; Robert Gignac, a suspect in a murder case; and Guy Masson, a fringe Liberal politician at Montreal—conspired to obstruct the course of justice.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Dorion report blasted Justice Minister Guy Favreau from his post Tuesday.

It also put the heat on Liberal MP Guy Rouleau, the RCMP, three present or former ministerial aides and others for their conduct in the Lucien Rivard affair.

Without specifying individuals, Chief Justice Frederic Dorion said there are grounds for criminal charges. He named four persons he said had conspired to obstruct justice and said these and others had lied under oath before his royal commission.

Little more than four hours after the searing report was tabled in the Commons, Prime Minister Pearson announced the justice minister's resignation. The opposition had already been demanding just that.

Others may be sacked as a result of the 140-page report. Others may end up in court.

BRIBE, PRESSURE

Mr. Lamontagne said he had been offered a $20,000 bribe and subjected to political pressure from Ottawa to agree to release on bail last summer of Rivard, then held for the United States on charges of running a $50,000,000 dope-smuggling racket for the Mafia crime syndicate.

Mr. Lamontagne was acting for the U.S. in Rivard's extradition hearings. Rivard broke jail March 2. There is a $15,000 price on his head.

TICKED OFF

The chief justice of the Quebec Superior Court, appointed by the federal government last November to investigate Mr. Lamontagne's charges and Mr. Favreau's and the RCMP's conduct as a result of them, ticked off nearly all the principals.

He said Mr. Favreau should have consulted his departmental advisers before deciding alone last Sept. 18 that charges should not be laid.

'SEEK FACTS'

The minister should have instructed his department "to construct the search for facts."

The report said Mr. Favreau was in a "position of being influenced" by his relations with persons charged by Mr. Lamontagne with having tried to induce him to let Rivard go on bail.

These persons were Raymond Denis, executive assistant to the immigration minister who was fired last October, Mr. Rouleau and Andre Letendre, still executive assistant to Mr. Favreau, and Guy Lord, at that time special assistant to the justice minister.

DIDN'T TELL RCMP

The report said Mr. Favreau hadn't told the RCMP to hunt for other facts which would have completed the information obtained up to Sept. 18.

It also questioned the joint reasoning of Mr. Favreau and RCMP commissioner G. B. McClellan in assessing evidence when they agreed then that

B.C. Reverses Stand on Bank

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Premier Bennett said Tuesday that the British Columbia government is prepared to ensure that there is no government investment in the proposed Bank of B.C.

In an interview here the premier said "We won't defy the laws of the land."

"We want the Bank of B.C. and will leave no stone unturned in removing all obstacles to granting the charter."

"We will do nothing that could prevent the charter being granted and are prepared to ensure that there will be no government investment in the bank if this is what the federal government desires."

Mr. Bennett's statement is a reversal of provincial government proposals in the past for investment of up to 25 per cent then 10 per cent of the share capital of the bank that was first proposed in 1964. The reference to the federal government is Finance Minister Gordon's proposal to forbid provincial government investment in any chartered bank.

Mr. Bennett said in another interview: "Now there is no excuse for not granting a charter for the bank with headquarters in Vancouver."

"We need that bank and I know we'll get that bank."

When the premier first proposed the Bank of B.C. he said it would have capitalization of more than $50,000,000. Legislation was passed which permitted the government to invest in up to 25 per cent of the share capital of the bank.

Mr. Bennett is here on what he referred to as one of his "incognito visits" to parts of the province. He travelled here on a special car on the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

Report Blasts Favreau from Justice Post prosecutions were not justified. The commissioner also was criticized for giving advice to the minister instead of just submitting evidence.

However, the efficiency of the force generally was "beyond question."

Eleven witnesses were among the 65 witnesses called by the Dorion commission during its 63 days of hearings between Dec. 13 and April 3.

Chief Justice Dorion said there is no doubt that Denis offered a $20,000 bribe to Mr. Lamontagne.

FOUR CONSPIRED

Neither was there any doubt that Mr. Rivard, Liberal spokesman Guy Masson, hoodlum Eddy Lechasseur and insider suspect Robert Gignac conspired to obstruct the course of justice.

In fact, these four had seemed in the witness box to compete to see which one could tell the biggest lie.

Gignac, a close friend of Rivard, enlisted the aid of Masson, his business associate, to approach Denis.

$20,000 WAITING

Masson, a friend of Denis, told Denis there was $20,000 waiting for the Liberal party if Rivard's extradition was blocked.

The judge said Mr. Rivard, while parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pearson, had committed a "reprehensible" — but not criminal — act which conflicted with "the normal course of justice."

Letendre had committed a reprehensible but not malicious act while Lord had acted imprudently.

These two aides and Mr. Rivard placed telephone calls in August to Mr. Lamontagne concerning bail for Rivard. Mr. Rivard resigned Nov. 24 as parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pearson and as chairman of the Liberal party caucus Feb. 13.

'BEYOND APPROACH'

The report said the evidence showed that the conduct of Postmaster General Tremblay, then immigration minister and Denis' boss, was "absolutely beyond reproach."

Of Mr. Favreau's action in suspending the RCMP inquiry into the allegations of attempted bribery and influence peddling by Mr. Lamontagne, the report said:

"The honorable minister of justice, before reaching a decision, should have submitted the case to the legal advisers within his department with instructions to complete the search for facts if necessary and secured their views upon the possible perpetration of a criminal offence by one or several of the persons involved."

FOUR REASONS

The report said Mr. Favreau was justified in believing on Sept. 18 that a charge would be difficult to prove in court for four reasons:

● The opinions expressed by RCMP Commissioner G. E. McCallum and Deputy Commissioner J. R. Lemieux "were such as to create a doubt in his mind."

● The RCMP file did not contain all the facts.

● It had been impossible for Mr. Favreau to be aware of all the documents in the RCMP file.

● He didn't have all the information which would have enabled him to decide whether Mr. Lamontagne's allegations were true or false.

Chief Justice Dorion in effect recommended that charges be laid now without specifying individuals. He said:

"After listening to the evidence concerning relevant facts both in support of and in contradiction to the allegations that brought this inquiry into being, after having heard the arguments of counsel for all interested parties... I find no difficulty in reaching the conclusion that there is certainly prima facie evidence of an offence under the Criminal Code."

TOO BUSY

Chief Justice Dorion said Mr. Favreau was so busy last September he didn't give the RCMP the attention it required.

Moreover, he "did not require the RCMP to hunt for other facts that would have completed the information obtained up to that date."

INFLUENCED

The chief justice said the 67-year-old Mr. Favreau was "placed in a position of being influenced by the relations that existed between himself and the persons mentioned in the denunciation formulated by Mr. Lamontagne."

He said the Mounties had found reasons to question Mr. Lamontagne's credibility but "there seems to have been no concern as to whether Mr. Denis' credibility was impeachable or not."

Neither Commissioner McCallum nor Mr. Favreau made any attempt to check the truth of a rumor the RCMP had picked up that a considerable sum of money was available to help Rivard.

Tremblay
"... beyond reproach"

Rivard
"... started it all"

The commissioner had told the inquiry that no corroboration could be found for Mr. Lamontagne's charges.

But under the Criminal Code, the chief justice said, corroboration was not required as much as whether facts could be proved to support Mr. Lamontagne's evidence.

Commissioner McCallum should not have attached so much importance to the delay between the alleged bribe offer and Mr. Lamontagne's account of it to the police.

WHY DELAY?

And if he did consider this important, he should have tried to find out the reason for the delay.

The alleged bribe offer was made July 14, Mr. Lamontagne told the RCMP Aug. 11.

It would have been "instructive and logical" for Mr. Lamontagne to have testified on his friend Denis immediately.

Chief Justice Dorion said the RCMP appointment of an English-speaking officer to question French-speaking persons to English "is so extraordinary that it is hard to believe it had happened in our times."

Various consequences flowed from the fact that reports on interrogations in French were drafted in English.

LANGUAGE VITAL

"It is absolutely essential that the report of an interrogation be drafted in the language in which the interrogation was held," the report declared.

The chief justice said it would have been more logical and normal for the RCMP to give Inspector J. P. Drapeau "complete freedom of action" in questioning persons he wanted to "without obliging him to have constant recourse to his senior officers for instructions."

Inspector Drapeau was chief investigator in the case and testified at the inquiry that his work was carefully controlled by RCMP officials throughout. His chief assistant was English-speaking Staff Sgt. Joseph McLeod.

The chief justice also said he didn't think the RCMP had any business advising Mr. Favreau on the decision he should make or the probable result of any charges.

SEEK FACTS

"Their duty is rather to seek out all the facts and leave the decision to the minister."

The report said the testimony of Mr. Rivard, Liberal MP, raised certain questions in our minds concerning his credibility.

Rivard had claimed that some facts in Inspector Drapeau's report about his interrogation were inaccurate.

"After having seen and heard Inspector Drapeau and Mr. Rivard, we prefer to believe the version of Inspector Drapeau."

The report said Gignac, a friend of Rivard's, "was quite determined in his attempt to use corruption and political influences in order to secure his friend's liberation."

Gignac accompanied Masson to a Hall, Que., motel June 22, 1964, where they were joined by Denis.

STOOD TO GAIN

Masson "came into the game perfectly willing... surmising in all probability that he stood to gain a very substantial reward."

Masson was a business associate of Gignac and a friend of Denis.

Denis "believed that by offering him (Mr. Lamontagne) $20,000 he could secure his help in achieving the desired end."

Gignac, whose testimony the report said, could not be believed, has already been charged with perjury.

The report added: "Mrs. Rivard's evidence is a tissue of lies."

It is obvious too that Eddy Lechasseur was intent on not telling the truth."

CONCEALED TRUTH

Masson had not told the whole truth and knowingly concealed some of it.

Denis, the report stated, abused his authority. He had attempted to minimize "the seriousness of his deeds by telling only part of the truth, animated in some respects by his own personal interest and, in others, by that of his political party."

PERJURY ALLEGED

The report said some of these witnesses seemed to be "indulging a competition to see who could tell the biggest lie, if not who could perjure himself most."

Commenting on Lechasseur's trip to Hall later the night of June 22, 1964, the report said:

"While the evidence does not indicate clearly and precisely what the true reasons for this trip were, we must inevitably conclude that the trip was made to satisfy the demands made by Masson and Gignac, pursuant to their interview with lawyer Denis."

The report noted the account of Mr. Lamontagne that he had been offered $20,000 by Denis and Denis' denial.

"We must conclude that of the two statements it is that of Mr. Lamontagne which must be accepted rather than Mr. Denis'.

"There is, therefore, no doubt that on the evening of July 14, 1964, Mr. Denis offered Mr. Lamontagne the sum of $20,000 should he agree not to oppose Rivard's application for bail."

MIGHT PROFIT

The report said Denis thought that if Rivard were released on bail he (Denis) "might benefit personally." It questions the conduct of Raymond Daoust, lawyer for Rivard, describing one aspect of it as "rather strange."

At one point, the report said, Masson had told Daoust that he didn't know Mr. Lamontagne, but Daoust had testified that Masson had told him that he (Masson) had seen Mr. Lamontagne that very day (July 20) in Ottawa.

Who is telling the truth, Masson or lawyer Daoust? One thing is certain: It is true that Masson did not know lawyer Lamontagne.

The report said the Aug. 11 telephone call made by Letendre, Mr. Favreau's aide, to Mr. Lamontagne, had "the obvious purpose of facilitating the release of Lucien Rivard on bail."

TOLD AS JOKE

Letendre had claimed that it would be dangerous to let Rivard go but Letendre "nonetheless decided to call up Mr. Lamontagne to inquire into the possibilities of bail for Rivard."

Letendre had claimed he had told Mr. Lamontagne as a joke that he would put in a good word for him with the U.S. attorney — general's department, Mr. Lamontagne's employer at the time.

'VERY ODD'

"This is a very odd sort of joke, coming from the lips of the executive assistant to the minister of justice for Canada, when he is talking to a lawyer whom he is discussing the bail possibilities for a narcotics trafficker who the government of the U.S. wants to extradite."

The report adds that the inquiry was told it is customary practice for a minister's executive assistant to intervene in the way Letendre did.

"If such be the case, we feel that the slightest hesitation in stating that it now is high time that this practice cease."

In a matter of argument in testimony between Letendre on the one hand and Mr. Lamontagne and Inspector Drapeau on the other, "our analysis of the circumstances obliges us to lend greater weight to the version given by Mr. Lamontagne and to the report by Inspector Drapeau."

Chief Justice Dorion said the "disagreeable consequences" of Lord's telephone call Aug. 4 to Mr. Lamontagne "should be a lesson to all executive assistants to ministers and should incite them not to intervene in judicial matters whether for the purposes of seeking bail or for other ends."

It would have been wiser and more prudent for Lord to have obtained a necessary information from officials of the justice department instead of approaching Mr. Lamontagne.

Hollow Tube Invaluable On Detecting Illnesses

By JOSEPH MOLNER M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is a proctoscope and what can be determined by an examination with it? I understand it has saved many lives.—MRS. G.R.L.

Indeed, the proctoscope has saved many lives. It is also invaluable in diagnosing conditions which, while not likely to be fatal, can cause a great deal of misery unless identified correctly and treated.

The proctoscope essentially is a smooth hollow tube, about three-quarters of an inch in diameter, and varying in length from six to 10 inches or so.

BLEEDING DETECTOR

The purpose is primarily to permit direct visual examination of the inside of the lower portion of the colon. The search primarily is for points at which there may be bleeding; polyps; cancer; ulceration; areas of inflammation.

It is also possible to obtain from any such affected area, samples which can be cultured (to determine whether harmful bacteria are present, and if so what kind), or tiny bits of tissue for microscopic examination — the most positive method of learning whether a suspicious area is or is not malignant.

CANCER WEAPON

Cancer is most dangerous of colonic conditions, generally speaking, and since about 80 per cent of all such cases occur within the area that can be observed with the proctoscope, the importance of such examinations is obvious.

If such a cancer can be detected before it has progressed much and is removed, cure is highly probable.

But if it is not found until noticeable symptoms develop, then the surgery is much more difficult and the danger much greater—not that such cancers have not been successfully removed, too.

The examination is virtually painless and can be done in the doctor's office. It should be part of a complete physical check-up.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have had pains in my chest and arms for a long time. Chest X-rays and EKGs revealed nothing. The doctor says it is a nervous condition and neuralgia. Can nerves cause this pain?—L.M.H.

Nerves certainly can—and it is either the hardest or the easiest thing to cure. Hardest if the patient is tensely "sure" that it is heart trouble even though no heart trouble exists; easiest if you can persuade the patient to relax and enjoy life instead of worrying himself into chronic tension. I hope you will be one of the latter.

Favreau seeks last word with Pearson

Judge Comments

Noted Cast Featured In Long Probe Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Cast of characters in Chief Justice Frederic Dorn's report on political influence — dispensing among government officials, with the judge's comment where given:

Louise Rivard, 49, former Montreal resort owner, whose efforts to get bail from detention on narcotics — smuggling charge brought bribery allegations. Now hunted after breaking from Montreal's Bordeaux jail last March 2.

Raymond Denis, 31, executive assistant to then immigration minister Rene Tremblay last his (Mr. Pearson's) urgings in order to contribute to the country's unity and welfare.

"I have therefore asked him to consider accepting another post which would be offered to him," Mr. Pearson added.

The prime minister then read Mr. Favreau's letter in which the retiring justice minister said the Dorion report's findings were tantamount to declaring no more than that if Chief Justice Dorion had been in Mr. Favreau's position, he might have exercised his discretionary authority in a different way.

But, Mr. Favreau said in his letter, his usefulness as minister of justice had been impaired. So, he added, while he must insist on acceptance of his resignation as minister of justice, he would be willing to serve in some other capacity.

July, accused of offering bribe to lawyer prosecuting Rivard. Report says there is no doubt he offered $20,000 bribe to prosecutor.

Guy Rouleau, 41, MP for Montreal Doreville. Acted "reprehensibly" though not criminally in using his influence as parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson to try to get Rivard out on bail. He has since resigned as prime ministerial aide and as chairman of Commons Liberal caucus.

Pierre Lamontagne, 29, of Montreal, counsel for U.S. in extradition case against Rivard who made bribery accusation against his old friend Denis. Besides bribery attempt, was subjected to political pressure.

Justice Minister Guy Favreau, 47, resigned his portfolio Tuesday night after the report criticized him for deciding on his own against prosecutions and not having departmental officials pursue the case. Prime Minister Pearson said he will offer him another post.

Hon. Rene Tremblay, 42, now postmaster — general, who dismissed Denis: Conduct "absolutely beyond reproach."

Andre Levesque, 35, executive assistant to Mr. Favreau then and now, called Mr. Lamontagne at Mr. Rouleau's instance to try to facilitate Rivard's bail. His conduct "reprehensible" but without malicious intent.

Gay Lord, 25, then special assistant to Mr. Favreau and now studying at Oxford, called the prosecutor for Mr. Rouleau. Acted imprudently but not reprehensibly.

RCMP Commissioner G. B.

McLellan, 36: Criticized on several points for his handling of the investigation into the bribe charge.

Robert Giguere, 35, pal of Rivard, under charge of capital murder at time of inquiry and since charged with perjury as result of inquiry testimony. No doubt he set bribe events in motion. "determined in his attempts to use corruption and political influences."

Guy Masson, 33, Montreal Liberal figure who said he told Denis $80,000 was available for extradition: "Came into the game...surmising in all probability that he stood to gain a very substantial reward."

Mrs. Louise Rivard, 32, who said she raised $60,000 for bail but not for bribery. Undoubtedly conspired to obstruct the course of justice with Giguere, Masson and Eddy Levesque. Her evidence was a "tissue of lies."

Eddy Levesque, 33, Montreal "importer" and Rivard henchman, commissioned by the prisoner to get him same political help: Made statements "too incredible to be believed."

Senator Louis F. Gauthier, 62, Liberal party treasurer in Quebec, who testified he cut off an unknown caller (presumably Masson) who wanted to talk about deportation: No comment by Chief Justice Dorion.

For Special Inquiries

Contempt Curb Powers Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — Chief Justice Frederic Dorn urges the government to provide power to special inquiries to deal with contempt of court.

His report tabled Tuesday in the Commons said the Inquiries Act "should be amended by the addition of a section meeting this deficiency."

"In the course of this inquiry I have realized that the judge, presiding over a royal commission set up under the Inquiries Act, does not have all the powers which are ordinarily his in the exercise of his judicial duties."

"He cannot decide whether there has been contempt of court either in his presence, or outside his presence."

"This lack of power, as I found on several occasions, leads to situations that are most embarrassing to the judge and which prevents the normal conduct of the inquiry."

He specified no instances although at one point during his month-long inquiry into alleged

Rouleau

Ex-Pearson Aide To Stay as M.P.

OTTAWA (UPI) — Guy Rouleau, former parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, said Tuesday night he would continue to sit as a member of parliament for the time being.

But he said he had "no statement to make" about what was said about him in the report by Chief Justice Dorn tabled in the commons Tuesday.

The report said the "facts clearly indicate that Mr. Guy Rouleau tried to use his influence as parliamentary assistant to the Prime Minister to secure the release of Lucien Rivard on bail."

"An intervention of this sort, particularly coming from a person in authority, certainly constitutes a reprehensible act, because it comes into conflict with the normal course of justice; but it does not constitute an act within which are to be found the elements essential in the perpetration of a criminal act."

He had said earlier he may make a statement after Pearson's announcement.

But other than to say he hadn't talked to Pearson today, the 42-year-old member from the Montreal riding of Doreville refused any comment.

Chevron Gasolines

You keep the cost of family vacation trips down, when you fill up regularly at the sign of the Chevron.

For over a generation continual advances in the quality of Chevron Gasolines have had a single aim: to provide your engine with the smoothest, most dependable power available and to give you more miles per gallon.

In 1960, for example, Chevron led the whole industry by introducing Methyl—the biggest breakthrough in anti-knock additives since Ethyl, 36 years earlier. Other big leaps forward have included a special additive to banish carburetor-icing; the famous Chevron Detergent-Action formula which keeps your carburetor as clean as the day it was installed; improved refining processes to assure the best possible octane values for new and older engines alike.

Today, this compound progress towards ultimate perfection has put Chevron Gasolines in a class by themselves. Our research shows they represent the sum total of every element known to date that goes to make Chevron Gasolines truly superb.

Compound progress adds up to COMPOUND POWER. And with COMPOUND POWER the miles cost you less. Drive into your nearest Standard Station or Chevron Dealer this week and try a tankful for yourself...

Lion Bitten on Nose To Save Man's Life

LISBON—A man bit a lion on the nose to keep it from killing his brother, the Portuguese news agency Lusitania reports.

The brothers, Lucio and Joaquim Chama, were hunting in Angola when the lion jumped on Lucio and plumed him to the ground.

Unable to shoot because his native bearer had run away with his gun, Joaquim leaped on the lion and tried to turn it upside down.

Not having any success with his hands, Joaquim got the lion to flip over by sinking his teeth into its snout. Lucio quickly slipped free and shot the animal dead.

The brothers are in hospital being treated for several wounds, but their condition is not serious.

Bail Sought for Pair in Scotland

VANCOUVER (CP)—Glasgow lawyer Joseph Baltrami said today he will try again to have bail set for mutilated money suspects Joe Percival and James McDougall.

In a telephone interview from Scotland with the Sun, Mr. Baltrami said the men were being held at Saughton Prison in Edinburgh pending their court appearance July 12.

ARRESTED SUNDAY — At that time Vancouver police will file depositions in court in support on warrants sent to Edinburgh that resulted in their arrest Sunday.

Asked if he would oppose warrants under the Fugitive Offenders Act for the return of the pair to Canada, he said: "Certainly, certainly, all the way."

POSSESSION CHARGE

Percival, 37, a former Vancouver policeman, and McDougall, 32, a former Vancouver real estate salesman, are both charged with the $1,250,000 robbery of mutilated money from a Vancouver warehouse last Feb. 11. They are also charged with possession of the full amount of the money.

Mr. Baltrami failed in a bid when the pair appeared in an Edinburgh court Monday to have bail set.

He said today he will re-apply and ask that a trial date be set so the men can contest the Vancouver depositions, which could result in their extradition to Canada.

FAMILY VISIT

The lawyer said both men were visiting with relatives when they were arrested. Their families arrived on the weekend. "As far as I know they have been here only to visit their relatives," he said.

ON RAIL

He said both men planned to return to Canada late this summer to prepare for their Supreme Court trial in Edmonton on charges of possession of stolen money from the warehouse robbery and possession of an unregistered firearm.

Both men are on $5,000 bail each, pending the trial.

Belmont delivers clean, clear taste through a new, moisturized charcoal filter.

Belmont has Canada's first moisturized charcoal filter. How effective is this new moisturized charcoal filter? It is so much more efficient that the taste of the tobacco—and only the tobacco—comes through clean and clear. As a result, Benson & Hedges were able to match the new filtering system to a more advanced tobacco blend.

Now Belmont brings you clarity of flavour and subtleties of taste never before possible. And the new blend prolongs these pleasures. It provides a slower burning, more leisurely smoke.

So if you're like the many smokers we talked to in a recent study, who want all the advantages of a charcoal filter, plus clean, clear tobacco taste...try Belmont.

Dying Girl Crawled Home in Silent Agony

Tragedy In Duncan

By KLAUS MUENTER
DUNCAN—Teresa Ellen Lum, 6, ran off from her backyard to play Sunday, and several minutes later came crawling slowly back to her home, leaving a 50-yard trail of blood behind her.

Her father, vegetable vendor Lum Hong Chun, 262 First Street, saw his small daughter trying to reach her home.

"She didn't whimper or cry," he told a friend later, "I never saw so much blood."

DIED SUNDAY

Teresa was rushed to King's Daughters Hospital, where she died late Sunday.

"Teresa was so looking forward to going to school for the first time this fall," a friend told me Tuesday.

The last moments of the child were reconstructed after talks with neighborhood children who knew and played with her.

Teresa had gone from her back yard and walked to a next-door house.

COULDN'T SEE HER

Behind this house is a shed, and near the house is a small glass greenhouse lean-to.

Two small boys were playing on the roof of the main building. Teresa could hear them, but they could not see her.

She began to slowly climb up to a gable to join the other children.

Teresa slipped and fell.

She crashed through the glass of the greenhouse, and a piece of the shattering glass severed an artery in her groin.

As profuse bleeding began, the child began crawling toward her home.

It took minutes for her to crawl through the shed, and into the yard, where her father saw her, and rushed to her side.

FOUND GIRL

The identity of the boys on the roof was not learned, but playmates emphasized they would not have realized what had happened.

Mr. Lum was working behind his own home when he found the girl taking her agonizing slow journey home.

Several doctors, including a specialist from Victoria, operated on the girl for hours in a struggle to save her life.

LIKE TINY MOTHER

Teresa was the only girl in the Lum family. She has two older brothers and a younger brother.

She loved and cared for her little brother like a tiny mother according to a friend. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Lum Chew of Nanaimo.

Coroner Dr. R. R. Wilson will hold an inquiry into the death. Date has not been set.

DETAILS AT INQUIRY

The family expects only at the inquiry will all details of the tragedy be known.

Funeral service will be held Saturday from Hirst Funeral Chapel at Duncan, 2 p.m.

Rev. W. P. Ha will officiate at the service, which will be followed by burial in the children's section of Mt. View Cemetery.

Bottles 'Piling Up'

The Taj Mahal of India was built for an ancient ruler's wife. George Plumb's Taj Mahal outside Duncan is there for all visitors to inspect. Mr. Plumb, below, is just finishing work on the structure, which now has 75,000 bottles in its framework.

Venereal Disease Continues Climb

COURTENAY—Venereal disease is still increasing throughout the North Island, according to a health official here.

Upper Island Health Unit director, Dr. G. A. Gibson, has issued a statement in which he said the incidence of the disease is on the upswing.

The health unit has received just under 100 notifications this year that the disease had been contracted. This is higher than for the same period last year.

For the whole of last year there were a total of 189 cases.

All cases reported were gonorrhoea.

Publicity Advocated For Welfare Cases

WHITE ROCK (CP)—A group of Canadian weekly newspaper publishers have called for publication once a year of the names of welfare recipients.

Delegates to the summer session of the B.C. Weekly Newspaper Association approved a resolution which also calls for publication of the amount each welfare recipient gets.

Dan Murray, publisher of the Alaska Highway News in Fort

St. John who proposed the resolution, said he hoped publicity would tend to make persons on welfare strive harder to seek work.

SECONDARY INDUSTRY

He said publicity could eliminate the hard-core of permanent welfare families.

"Up in our country welfare is becoming a secondary industry," said Mr. Murray.

The publishers also approved a resolution calling for publication of the names of juveniles involved in court cases.

About 30 of B.C.'s 60 weekly newspapers were represented at the summer session.

Merger Bill

LONDON (AP)—The House of Commons gave unanimous approval Tuesday to a bill empowering the government to veto newspaper mergers.

The power is included in a measure on monopolies and mergers. It is expected to become law this year after approval by the House of Lords.

Roger Jolly Well Stays

Have the owners of the old Woodward's store near the Empress Hotel declared war on the world?

Or is it that they simply don't care? Whatever the case, a Jolly Roger flag has been flying over the vacant premises for some months now, and an alert Colomist reader has suggested that this places the building in an interesting legal position, since it has been long assumed that anything flying the skull and crossbones considered itself outside the law.

City lawyers could not offer a legal opinion on the matter. Woodward's disclaims any knowledge of the flag.

Tropical Atmosphere To Mark Sidney Day

An aura of tropical romance will climax Sidney Day on Dominion Day.

After a day of fun including a parade, a stage show, games, rides and refreshments, a Tropical Night Dance will be held in Sansa Hall.

Decor will be that of a jungle while suggested costumes include apparel native to Africa, Spain, Puerto Rico, the Bahamas, Mexico or any other tropical country.

Music will be supplied by Fred Usher and his group.

Prizes will be offered for the best costume worn by a male, a female and a couple.

Other highlights of the day will include a pancake breakfast from 9 to 11 a.m.; a big parade at 11 a.m.; official opening of events at 12:15 p.m.; and all-day entertainment.

Special gate prizes will be a helicopter ride for two.

Babies Awaiting Adoption Not Just Victoria Problem

By JIM BRAMAN

An overabundance of babies for adoption is not just a Victoria problem but is province-wide, according to Gordon Wright, executive director of the Family and Children's Service.

Speaking Tuesday as a panelist at a public meeting in Spencehouse to stimulate interest in adoptions in the Greater Victoria area, he said Victoria has fewer babies for adoption than other parts of the province.

Other members of the panel chaired by Mrs. Hattie Staghall were: Dr. Hugh Borsman, Dr. Peter Ramsford, Mrs. Jane Gurr and two adopting parents.

MEDICAL HISTORY

Dr. Ramsford explained to an audience which filled the boardroom the importance of gaining detailed information on the medical history of the parents of the child being adopted.

Mrs. Gurr pointed out methods of adopting children have changed throughout the years.

At one time children were adopted to please people, she said. Now, she claimed, children are placed with families who can meet the needs of the children.

The meeting was the first of its kind to be held in Victoria but they have been held in other cities across the country.

Bill Not Counterfeit So New Charge Filed

PORT ALBERT—A stay of proceedings has been entered in the case of the Confederate bill. The charge of passing a counterfeit bill will be dropped.

However, Janio Kevric, Albert, will be asked to enter a plea on a charge of false pretences.

Kevric was charged with passing a counterfeit note after the $50 bill was cashed at a local auto court and the cashier paid not only the face value but also $3.50 in exchange.

In the trial before Magistrate W. E. MacLeod, the bill was entered as evidence. It bore a date of the 1860s and was inscribed "refundable in Confederate stock bearing eight per cent interest," according to RCMP Cpl. V. D. R. Wilson.

During the trial it was brought out that an attempt had been made previously to cash the note at the Beaufort Hotel where a waiter had refused it.

Duty Vote Deals Blow To LBJ and Economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate dealt President Johnson one of his few legislative defeats of the year Tuesday by rejecting his request to limit U.S. tourists returning from abroad to $50 in duty-free goods.

Then, by voice vote, it passed a bill putting the figure at $100. The bill also limits to one quart the amount of liquor any homeward-bound American will be allowed to carry into the country without paying duty on it. This exemption also was limited to persons over the age of 21.

The House already has passed a bill, with the same $100 limit. Passage of the bill by the Senate would represent a setback for the administration's struggle with the nation's balance of payments problem. Senate approval of the $100 limit assured that the lower figure could come out of a House-Senate conference to work out differences between the bills passed by the two Houses.

The Senate bill limits a tourist to an exemption only on goods he carries with him as baggage. The House bill allows a tourist to ship back any portion of his duty-free goods that is too bulky to carry.

LATER DATE VOTED

Both bills allow a tourist to ship a duty-free gift-out to exceed $10 in value—to his friends back home.

Before passing the bill, the Senate voted to make it effective Oct. 1, instead of on July 1 as provided in the House bill.

This amendment was adopted after Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., said the earlier effective date might catch some tourists abroad with goods already purchased on the basis of existing law.

Racial Flareups Continue in U.S.

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Jackson police arrested 70 civil rights demonstrators Tuesday and there was a new racial flareup in Chicago.

In other highlights, an Alabama legislative commission urged the student non-violent co-ordinating committee be cited "as an important arm of the pro-Communist conspiracy" in America.

The arrests in Jackson brought the three-week total in the city to 1,000.

Viet Cong Slip Trap

SAIGON (UPI) — American paratroopers, South Vietnamese and Australian soldiers slogged through Viet Cong infested jungle and swamps 30 miles north of Saigon today in an attempt to force the communists into a major battle.

But, in this first major combat offensive by American troops in the Viet Nam war, the guerrillas appeared to have eluded the pincer attack and only light contact was reported.

In fighting yesterday, four

U.S. marines were killed in a battle with communist guerrillas near Da Nang. U.S. jets flew to within 65 miles of the communist Chinese border in their deepest probe into communist North Viet Nam.

Armed Sugar-Workers Battle Junta Troops

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters) — Armed sugar workers supporting the rebel government were reported Tuesday still fighting police and troops loyal to the rival civilian-military junta in Sabana Grande de Boya, 45 miles from this Dominican capital.

The workers were reported holding out in three clusters of houses in the small town after fighting broke out Monday when a leading rebel supporter was arrested, a rebel spokesman said.

Such outbreaks of fighting in the republic continued to be reported although both sides in the civil war—the junta under Gen. Antonio Imbert and the rebels under Col. Francisco Caamaño—have agreed to set up a normal situation in the Caribbean island country.

The rival groups have submitted counter-proposals to a plan for a representative provisional government submitted by the Organization of American States to end the war which began two months ago.

Warnings for Defaulters

Hard Hats for Cyclists Holiday Battle Order

By IAN STREET

The long holiday weekend, which for many in B.C. begins tonight, will be notable for at least two things.

Starting Thursday, anyone on a motorcycle is required by law to wear a protective helmet.

And, by coincidence, the RCMP freeway patrol announced some time ago is to begin operations on the Lower Mainland.

DRIVE SAFELY

Ray Hadfield, superintendent of motor vehicles for B.C., urged motorists everywhere to drive safely and pay particular attention to the children now out of school.

Last weekend two children were numbered among four highway fatalities in the province.

Mr. Hadfield said the law requiring crash helmets for motorcycle riders won't be enforced to the letter immediately.

Police have been asked to stop and warn those who don't wear helmets during the initial period.

"We are trying to educate the public so that they will be aware that this is something they will want to do for their own protection," the superintendent said.

This lenient attitude will continue for "a reasonable length of time," he said, but the motor vehicle branch will be advised of repeaters, and further action against them will be considered.

COULD BE JAILED

There is no specific penalty for not wearing a helmet. The offence is covered by a section of the Motor Vehicle Act, which sets no minimum and sets maximum penalty at $200 or three months in jail.

So far this year, motorcycle accidents have accounted for 11 of the total deaths on B.C. highways.

The RCMP freeway patrol will comprise 35 men.

Mr. Hadfield said beneficial effects will be felt all over the province, because officers who have been on part-time freeway patrol will be released for detachment duties.

This will pay off in better enforcement of highway regulations, he said.

The provincial motor vehicles branch is now trying to establish which foreign makes of protective helmet meet the accepted British standard.

"We don't intend to exclude the products of other countries, provided we receive assurance that they will meet standards of safety," said Mr. Hadfield.

Acceptable helmets must be able to withstand 5,000 pounds on impact and must be fitted with harness to provide adequate protection.

Space Satellite Up Four Years

Beautification by Dam

Plans for Gorge Revived

Possible beautification of the Gorge has again come to the fore now that the pollution controversy appears all but over.

Two separate groups repeated proposals Tuesday that the Gorge be improved as a central project.

The only trouble is, they can't agree on what would be the best way to improve it.

BACK IN APRIL

The two groups submitted briefs to the centennial committee back in April suggesting their schemes, but the projects appeared to be lost in the shuffle after Saanich and the provincial government applied to dump treated effluent into a creek draining into the area.

It was suggested on Friday that authorities no longer planned to put sewage into the Gorge, however, and thus the improvement proposals again came to the fore.

One scheme was presented by Esquimalt municipality, and the basic proposal was to hold the water of the Gorge at a certain level by damming the narrow section beneath Tillamook bridge.

SIMILAR

The second scheme was presented by private citizens Richard Faulk, 196 Werra Road, and Lloyd Smith, 137 Kipling Place, and it is similar in many aspects.

They propose that some sort of movable dam be placed at the same location so that the water can be held back or let go, depending on what is desired.

Both plans seek to get rid of mud flats in the Gorge and Portage Inlet, but the approaches are slightly different.

HIDE FLATS

Under the Esquimalt plan, the water level would be permanently raised, thus hiding the flats, while under the other scheme the flats would be dredged out and replaced by sand.

Said Mr. Smith, "We would keep the water level either high or low, but only for limited periods at certain times of the year."

He said the idea of a removable dam would leave the sea life of the Gorge unaffected, whereas a permanent dam might have an adverse effect.

STUDY QUOTED

He quoted a survey carried out by University of Victoria marine ecologist Dr. D. V. Ellis, who stressed the importance of not disturbing populations of marine creatures in the area now.

The only safe times for operation of a dam, according to Dr. Ellis, are during the early part of June (between the departure of the herring and the spawning of shellfish) and during September (between settling of shellfish and arrival of the herring).

The dam would either be removable, or would lie flat on the floor of the Gorge when not in use. It would cost an estimated $50,000.

Under the Esquimalt plan, a permanent flow of water would go over the dam, and there would be a lock so that boats could traverse the gap at unfavorable tides.

At high tide the water would move freely in and out of the Gorge, which would probably reduce any adverse effect on marine creatures.

The famous reversing falls, destroyed five years ago when the rock under Tillamook bridge was blasted away, would possibly be restored by the Faulk-Smith plan.

TWO MILES

The brief suggested that if the area were to be improved, almost two miles of possible beach access would be open to the public.

The mud dredged from the bottom of the Gorge could be used to form a peninsula or islands, to increase beach area and provide nesting areas for birds.

Ducks in the area are now threatened by marauding dogs and raccoons while on their nests.

Any plan to raise the water level or deepen the Gorge would probably ease the current algae problem, which had made the Gorge an unfit recreation area over much of its surface.

Seagulls Ground Airliner

CALGARY (CP) — A four-engine turbo-prop aircraft of Western Airlines had to feather one motor and return to McCall Field International airport Tuesday after it hit a flock of seagulls on take-off.

The Electra, with 60 passengers aboard, had just left the runway bound for Denver when it hit the gulls and an air intake to one engine was blocked. The Electra was grounded for repairs. Some 20 seagulls were killed in the accident.

How a dour Scot rebelled against tradition and started to make gin instead of you-know-what.

In 1769, a dour old Scot named Alexander Gordon packed up his money and came to London. Where he built himself a gin distillery, of all things.

His clan was outraged. And vowed never to allow Gordon to set foot in the highlands again.

And the English laughed at him. Until they tasted his gin. Whereupon, they smiled with pleasure.

And then, not only did the English adopt Gordon as one of their own, but swore he was the greatest English gin maker of all time.

Today, Gordon's is the best-selling gin in the world. Because Gordon's descendants are as canny as he was.

Nobody but Gordon's makes Gordon's Gin, no matter where it's made—and it's made in 9 different countries, including Canada.

The exact and original formula is never varied for any reason whatsoever. Ever.

And nobody but Gordon's can approve the finished gin for bottling.

Once bottled, it needs one more approval.

Yours.

No Free Narcotics In Treatment Plan

By IAN STREET

Canada will not provide free narcotics to drug addicts to feed their habit, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said here Tuesday.

She told a Kwanan luncheon in the Empress Hotel that inspectors keep a close watch on physicians who take on the usually thankless task of treating addiction.

DOCTORS WARNED

"Too often, the minister said, the physician in such cases, in effect, merely replaces the drug trafficker by providing so-called legal drugs.

In such cases the doctor can expect "close questioning and scrutiny by my department," Miss LaMarsh warned.

"As police enforcement lessens the supply of narcotics, there is an inevitable trend by addicts to persuade physicians under one guise or another to provide narcotics," she said.

ADDICTS WILY

"These addicts are wily, experienced and persuasive, and many physicians have unwittingly been used as tools to provide narcotic medication under the guise of the patient's desire to be treated and finally kick the habit."

In one case documented by her department, Miss LaMarsh said, two addicts under the care of a physician increased their daily drug requirements six times.

This is like attempting to treat an alcoholic by giving him drunk and keeping him drunk, she said.

SUPPORT TREATMENT

"My department will always give support to a physician who sincerely undertakes the treatment of an addict," she minister said.

"We cannot, however, agree that the indiscriminate or unlimited provision of drugs of itself constitutes treatment, either at the hands of a physician or a trafficker."

The essence of treatment for addiction must involve a reduction in the patient's need for narcotics, leading to his eventual ability to live normally without narcotics.

WILLING HELP

Miss LaMarsh said any addict who genuinely wants treatment will find any number of physicians willing to help. There is also the addiction foundation in Vancouver which is numbered among institutions that "don't operate as feeding stations for addicts."

The minister said narcotic legislation in Canada has been wrongly labelled harsh, savage, barbaric and old-fashioned.

The third problem was referred to deputy city clerk Moran Waller. It came from Police Chief John Gregory.

Mr. Waller will look into the bylaw governing late night parking at Beacon Hill Park and what signs, if any, tell drivers about after-dark parking regulations.

ONLY 15 MINUTES
The bylaw generally restricts parking to 15 minutes any time after dark, said a letter from the chief.

The restriction comes into effect after 8 p.m. during November, December and January; after 9 p.m. during February, March, April and October and after 10 p.m. during May, June, July, August and September.

The only exception all year round is a one-hour period after an official function or "demonstration" at the park.

The chief's letter said he felt adequate signs stating the regulations should be posted in the park.

Fell Three Storeys

Boy's Life Saved Twice

VANCOUVER (CP) — An artificial breathing machine has been credited with twice saving the life of a young Vancouver boy during a four-hour brain operation.

Michael Cantock, 4, was taken to hospital suffering multiple fractures of the skull and brain damage after falling three storeys from his apartment home to a concrete porch 14 days ago.

Brain surgeons held little hope for his survival, but decided to try a delicate operation to remove damaged bone and tissue.

A senior surgeon, who declined to be identified, said the operation would have been impossible 10 years ago but "we had to pull out all the stops if the boy was to have even a 50-50 chance of living."

Twice during the four-hour operation Michael's breathing stopped, once for a full minute.

Both times, the Bird respirator—a device to restore natural heartbeat and breathing—was used when external treatment failed.

For three days the respirator stayed with Michael in the hospital's recovery room. This week it was removed, and hospital officials list his condition as fair.

The respirator, developed several years ago by Dr. Forrest Bird, of California, probably saved Michael's life, doctors said.

It is attached over the mouth and nose, and forces an oxygen-air mixture into the lungs to stimulate natural breathing.

Doctors said when Michael was first examined his head was so badly shattered that pieces of skull had penetrated into his brain and blood clots were cutting off circulation.

"The doctors' work is truly amazing," said Mrs. Lena Cantock, Michael's mother.

No wonder Pontiac is so popular
just look at it!

One glance at Pontiac's out-and-out beauty tells you why it enjoys so much popularity with Canadian car buyers. But looks are only part of the Pontiac story. Pontiac has a lot more than just glamour. Luxurious comfort, for instance, in the rich fabrics and thoughtful appointments of Pontiac's fashion-plate interiors. Swashbuckling performance, backed by outstanding dependability. And pace-setting Pontiac engineering developments. Like the all-new way Pontiac is built this year, with tough perimeter frame construction and curved glass side windows. Like dramatically improved road-holding ability from the new wider track and Full-Coil suspension. Plus a long list of other fine features and options that easily explain Pontiac's appeal to your practical side. As to

Rodriguez Almost Quit Tour

Pros Cool to 'Hot Dog'

By MILTON REICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—There's a well-known golfer on the tour who thinks it's high time he got off it if some of his fellow pros resent his being around.

For fun-loving, 23-year-old Puerto Rican Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez that particular title came last week just after the conclusion of the 56th U.S. open championship in St. Louis.

"I thought the whole thing over for a long time because I didn't want to do this in a hurry and I made up my mind to quit the tour for good this week," said the water-thin, 123-pound Rodriguez with obvious sincerity.

"I talked it over with my wife, Iveland, and if she had agreed with me, I would have quit."

"She said, 'Don't let two or three guys who complain about you drive you off the tour, because that's exactly what they want. Only two or three golfers of the 300 who play the tour seem to resent you and that's a pretty small percentage. Don't you think?'"

NAKES BENSE

His wife made sense, so the emotionally upset Rodriguez decided to stick it out—for the time being, anyway.

What some of his fellow pros don't like about Chi Chi is his lack of inhibition on the golf course. They object to his being a "hot dog" by waving his hands over his head after he sinks a particularly tough putt, covering the cup with his straw hat and then peering into the hole to see if the ball is really there, and his doing a cha-cha when he discovers it is.

Well, isn't that too bad! The sometimes overly stuffy Professional Golfers' Association apparently thinks it is, because it has spoken with Rodriguez about his clowning three or four times.

"Every time they talk to me, I start playing bad," said Chi Chi, lowering his head. "I can't play golf if I'm not myself. That's the only way I know how to play. Other guys play mean. They sowl all the time and never say a word. I can't play that way. I never could."

STAY ANONYMOUS

Even more disturbing to the sensitive Rodriguez is that his accusers prefer to remain anonymous.

"Those who complain about me have never come and told me to my face," he said.

The feeling here is that those pros who object to Rodriguez are making a mountain out of a molehill, which seems to be par for the course among many touring golfers, whose ideas and attitudes seem to vary in direct proportion to whether they're winning or losing money.

GOOD JOE

And speaking of that inflated commodity which makes the world go round, Rodriguez said he wouldn't especially miss the money if he decides to quit the tour.

"I would miss my friends on the tour more than I'd miss the money," he said. "I have a good job as teaching pro at Dorado Beach Hotel in Puerto Rico and I make a good living at it. Maybe I don't make as much money as I could on the tour but it's a lot surer money. Quitting the tour wouldn't kill me."

TIME OF HIM

One of the tour veterans explained Chi Chi's fellow golfers don't resent him as much as they get tired of him.

"He's a regular guy and nobody really dislikes him, but we've seen his act hundreds of times," said the tour veteran. "Coming into a new city each time, or for the first time in a year, Rodriguez' act looks new to the galleries and they eat it up."

THE POOR KID

"I was playing with a 30-handicap the other day," he likes to tell his audience. "This fellow had a 50-foot putt for a 35 and he asked me, 'Chi-Chi, how does it break?' They'll never really muffle Rodriguez, who may act like a kid but claims he never was one because "I was too poor to be a kid."

After St. Paul Tourney

Jack's Roll Bigger

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—Jack Nicklaus stretched his lead among golf's money winners when he picked up $4,000 for a fifth-place finish in the St. Paul Open.

Winnings to $62,317 for Tony Lema, who lost some ground when he collected only $550 at St. Paul. Bruce Devlin, who tied Nicklaus in the tournament moved into third place ahead of Dan Sikes.

English-Breds Mollycoddled?

American Bloodlines Leave Mark in U.K.

By RON HOWARD

LONDON (CP)—Thoroughbred racing with a dash of American ancestry are proving a potent threat in the British classic tests of speed and stamina—the Derby and the Oaks.

In the last three years, two foreign-owned colts bred with American bloodlines have run off with the £50,000—added Derby, richest of the British flat races.

And even though the 1964 winner, Santa Claus, was English-bred, his purse left the country for he was owned and trained in the Republic of Ireland.

Rubbing more salt into the wounded pride of English owners seeking to place British purses back into breeding, the filly Long Look, American-owned and bred, captured the £30,000 Oaks at the end of the four-day Derby meet June 4.

Both races are 1½ miles and are run over the arduous Epsom course, which rises, falls and then turns 90 degrees to the left in an uphill stretch to the wire.

This year's runaway Derby winner, Sea Bird, owned by French clothing manufacturer Jean Ternynck, traces his transatlantic family tree back to Preakness and Belmont Stakes winner Native Dancer, sire of the French colt's dam.

Meadow Court, a chestnut colt that made racing history this year by being the first Canadian-owned horse to finish in the Derby money, is out of Meadow Music, a mare sired by Tom Fool—American horse of the year in 1953. Meadow Court won the Irish Derby last weekend.

BOUGHT IN IRELAND

Calgary publisher Max Bell, who received £7,706 for Meadow Court's second to Sea Bird, said in an interview after the June 3 race that he "liked Meadow Court on paper" before he bought it for £12,450 at an Irish yearling sale in 1963.

A French-owned colt named Relko, who embarrassed a Derby field of 24 horses in 1963 with a six-length victory, was also out of a French mare by Relic, an American stud.

British racing reporters, bemoaning the fact that only three other English-bred colts besides Santa Claus have placed in the Derby's first three since 1962, feel homebreds do not get the necessary racing time to build stamina into their line.

"In America," writes Roger Mortimer of The Sunday Times, "it is recognized that the primary function of a racehorse is to race. There is little mollycoddling of racehorses over there and no doubt the number that break down is by no means inconsiderable."

FAST AND TOUGH

"But those that survive the treatment and reach the top are sure to be fast and tough. Relko and Sea Bird, both outstanding Derby winners, are examples of the combination of French and American blood."

John Lawrence of The Sunday Telegraph blames the "golden lure" of stallion syndication for weakening British stock. He notes that it has "led too often to the premature retirement of horses with only one or two important victories to their credit."

Rest Time At Henley

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (CP)—Canadian crews took it easy Tuesday on the eve of the Henley Royal Regatta but coaches predicted good runs against their opposition in the opening heats of the world's top amateur rowing event.

George Hungerford and Roger Jackson, Canada's Olympic gold medalists in the pair event at Tokyo last year, stayed away from the one-mile, 550-yard Thames course, spending the day resting. They hope to return today with a fresh approach and "really hit it hard."

FAST START

Pitted against a veteran Finnish crew in the first heat of the Silver Goblets, Hungerford, 21, and Jackson, 23, plan to take off at a high rate—possibly 38 or 39 strokes a minute—and wear down the older crew.

TIED AFTER TRIP

They were pretty tired after the nine-hour flight over here so they are going right to bed after supper," coach Joe Grey of the Vancouver Island contingent said Tuesday night.

"But they are in top shape," Grey added.

They would have another brief workout this morning before meeting Cheltenham school of Cheltenham, England, in their afternoon heat.

Paul Baylis, 19-year-old Victoria stroke, is the only member of the eight competing today who was with the crew when they rowed here last year.

Grey said the Shawinigan party—which includes another eight who will be rowing against Mandolin College at Oxford Thursday, a cricket team and a track team—had a smooth flight over the North Pole in their chartered plane. The group will tour various events in England and Europe before returning home Aug. 9.

Kootenokoff, 30, held the same position last season at Renton High School in Renton, Wash. He will be employed on a year-round basis and part of his duties will be to develop and assist community organizations in their athletic programs.

Twice a B.C. high school all-star with Mission, Kootenokoff starred at Seattle University, played with Alberni Athletics when they won the Canadian senior "A" championship in 1955, and was a member of the Canadian Olympic team in 1960.

Kootenokoff Cage Coach

VANCOUVER — John Kootenokoff, who came out of a Mission high school to become one of B.C.'s outstanding basketball players, has been named head basketball coach at Simon Fraser University.

Kootenokoff, 30, held the same position last season at Renton High School in Renton, Wash. He will be employed on a year-round basis and part of his duties will be to develop and assist community organizations in their athletic programs.

Whistling Sea Chicago Bound?

TORONTO (CP)—Whistling Sea, 1963 Queen's Plate winner, may be shipped to Chicago for the $100,000 Arlington Classic Aug. 26, his owner, Paul Olivier of Calgary, said Monday.

"Horatio Laro (trainer for Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor) told me to send him to Chicago," said Olivier in an interview.

"If Horatio thinks we should go and my trainer, Roy Johnson, says so, we'll go," Olivier also confirmed that Whistling Sea, first western winner of the plate, will race at Blue Bonnets, Montreal, in two weeks and here at Woodbine July 17.

"I don't know if we'll be able to wait two weeks with him," Olivier said. "He's feeling so good after Saturday's race, he was kicking the barn down this morning."

Fruit Relief Hinted By Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The struggling fruit farmers of British Columbia learned Tuesday they may get some help from the federal government, but Agriculture Minister Hays suggested the province will have to help foot the bill.

Three briefs were presented to Mr. Hays outlining the plight of farmers in the Okanagan, Similkameen and Kootenay valleys, many of whom lost most of their orchards during a severe storm last December.

Mr. Hays told reporters he hopes "it won't be long before some sort of ground rules" are worked out which will provide relief to farmers on a continuing basis.

"I think they (the farmers) are reasonably worried and I think they require some help," he said.

"Of course any help we give them will be on a sharing basis with the province and the municipalities."

TEENAGE MOOTED

Dick Stewart of Kelowna, who presented a brief on behalf of the Association of British Columbia Grape Growers to Mr. Hays and Agriculture Minister Frank Nicholson of British Columbia, said Mr. Hays told them the federal government would consider the association's request for aid "if we work with them on crop insurance."

Mr. Stewart told reporters he understood this to mean that his and similar organizations should put pressure on the British Columbia government to co-operate with Ottawa on a program of crop insurance.

Constitutionally, insurance is a provincial matter, but the federal government can take part in an insurance scheme through a joint board set up by the two levels of government.

Mr. Stewart's brief said about 85 per cent of this year's grape crop will be destroyed. It requested an immediate grant of $300,000 to replace vines, 30 per cent of which were ruined.

Arthur Garrish of Oliver, B.C., president of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association which represents 3,300 growers, termed the situation in the province's fruit industry "disastrous."

The growers' hail, as a result of the disaster, suffered a reduction of gross income of over $8,000,000.

Cosmic Voyagers

U.S. Names Moon Shot Team

SPACE CENTRE, Houston (UPI) — The U.S. Space Agency Tuesday signed up its first six astronaut-candidates and said it will have them trained for cosmic voyages within three years — possibly in time for one to get aboard the first manned trip to the moon.

MOON EXPEDITION

The new scientist-astronauts — two college professors, a pair of medical doctors, a rocket engineering expert and a geologist — hopped aboard the nation's $20,000,000 space shuttle to the moon in a light-hearted news session in which they described themselves as the space-going "eyes and ears of the scientific community."

Each will go to work as a space trainee next month as a government-paid "CS-14." The job pays about $14,170 per year.

The astronaut-candidates, who next month will join the 28 pilot-astronauts the United States already has in training, include:

• Dr. Edward G. Gibson of San Clemente, Calif., America's youngest astronaut at 28 and a jet propulsion expert who called his chance at the moon "a major combination of physical and scientific adventure" in which man would prove he is better than instruments.

• Dr. Owen K. Garriott of Stanford University, a 34-year-old associate professor of electrical engineering who tried once before, in 1963, to become an astronaut only to watch his application "gather dust" because he was not a jet pilot.

Kerwin, Gibson, Michel, Graveline, Schmitt, Garriott

• Dr. F. Curtis Michel, 31, of Houston, a Rice University assistant professor of space science, who also tried two years ago to sign up as a spaceman only to fail because his 800 hours of air force flying time was far short of that required.

• Dr. Duane E. Graveline, 34, a slender, handsome Houston "medic" who credited the flight of Russian expert Boris Yegorov into space aboard the Vostok-1 ship last Oct. 13 as having been partially responsible for the new U.S. scientist-astronaut program.

• Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin of Jacksonville, Fla., a 34-year-old navy lieutenant commander who conceded that his 700 hours of jet flying "is perhaps one reason why I'm here," despite the agency's insistence that pilot time was not mandatory for this, the nation's fourth group of astronaut.

• Dr. Harrison (Jack) Schmitt, a 34-year-old Flagstaff, Ariz. bachelor and geologist, who said that, "As a geologist, this is where a geologist ought to start looking—toward the moon, mars, and who knows where after that."

INTENSIVE COURSE

Graveline, Gibson, Garriott and Schmitt will ship out to Williams Air Force Base, Ariz., July 28 to begin an intensive 35-week course in jet flying. They are to gain enough experience to help in the piloting of a three-seater Apollo spaceship in case of emergency.

Kerwin and Graveline, already trained pilots, start work in the astronaut department of the manned spacecraft center at about the same time.

SPACE RIDE

"We anticipate a three-year training period," said Donald K. Slayton, chief of the astronaut office.

Slayton added that one of the group "possibly" could be ready to ride along on the nation's first manned expedition to the moon around 1970.

Church Work Makes Hipster Christians

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hipster teenagers who get interested in church work don't lose their sophistication—they become hipster Christians, says the president of the United Church's Fellowship of Disciples.

Ferna Graham of Toronto, National United Church Secretary for Girls' Work, said Monday an active Christian life lets a teenager's real personality shine through.

"The genuine hipsters stay hipsters," she said.

Miss Graham was elected this week as president of the 300-member Fellowship of Disciples, which includes female ministers and Christian education workers as well as deaconesses.

The Fellowship today winds up five days of meetings at Union College in Vancouver.

More than 100 members have been attending meetings, along with observers from the Presbyterian, Baptist, Methodist, Roman Catholic and Anglican churches, and the Salvation Army.

Theme of the gathering is the Life of the World, and delegates have broadly interpreted this in discussion groups to take in all phases of church activity.

Youth work has been one of the constant subjects of discussion. Miss Graham said there is general concern for the "unreached" teenagers—those who are untouched by church activities.

She said the United Church is sharing in small local experiments in ways to reach these young people.

"A promising line seems to be the informal approach, particularly as seen in the Christian coffee houses for teenagers across the country," she said.

Miss Graham said young people attracted into the church often demonstrate more interest in it than children brought up in churchgoing families.

She said there is sometimes resistance among older church people to church programs for teenagers.

"What we have to realize, when it comes to things like the coffee house program, is that God is speaking to these young people in ways He never spoke to us," she said.

Miss Graham has been in her present job for four years, and before that did home mission work in Saskatchewan's Prince Albert and Yorkton districts.

The meetings at Union College have also been concerned with the role of the women in the modern church.

Miss Graham said there is a small but steady supply of young women wishing to be ordained as United Church ministers.

There are many others who take sufficient training to become deaconesses—who can preach and do all the work of an ordained minister except administer the sacraments, she said.

Policemen Protest Civil Board

NEW YORK (UPI) — Five thousand off-duty policemen swarmed to City Hall Tuesday to demonstrate against the proposed establishment of a civilian review board to hear complaints of police brutality.

Such complaints now are heard by a police board made up of three deputy commissioners.

The policemen, wearing sports clothes and other civvies, but carrying their service revolvers, walked a picket line with signs reading, "No interference with our police department," "Trial by jury, not by review board" and "No kangaroo court."

Some of the policemen brought their wives and children along for the demonstration.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Larry Kanester, described by the justice as a menace to society, Tuesday was sentenced to 10 years for the rape of a Victoria university student in 1964.

Kanester had received 10 years for the same offence, was granted a new trial, found guilty and sentenced again.

At the retrial Kanester admitted two robberies involving women, and a rape. He said he received 11 months and three years for the robberies and two years less a day for the rape.

Mr. Justice J. G. Rutman said Kanester was a menace who preyed on young women.

"I have seldom come across a case which has moved me more to seek protection for society," the justice said in passing sentence.

Peace Talk By U.S. 'Lies'

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Kossygin said Tuesday United States calls for peace in Viet Nam are a deception and warned that American forces "will have to take into account an increase in aid" to the Vietnamese people from Communist countries.

The premier also assailed U.S. policy in the Dominican Republic and other parts of the world, charging the U.S. with aggression.

Judy LaMarsh Favreau

By GARY OAKES

The once-proud Guy Favreau now is a humble man "because of the luck of the draw" Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said in Victoria Tuesday.

Miss LaMarsh was hopeful the former justice minister will continue to serve Canada "with his head up."

Mr. Favreau resigned his post Tuesday after the report of the Dorion inquiry was tabled in the House of Commons.

The health minister who, an aide said, is a close friend of Mr. Favreau, called him a man of high integrity and great ability.

Speaking to more than 50

people at a public meeting sponsored by the Victoria Liberal Association, Miss LaMarsh said Mr. Favreau served law for many years "with devotion and love."

Tomorrow, she remarked, the man sought after by politicians will start again, perhaps following a different career.

Referring to the Dorion inquiry and other incidents, the health minister admitted the great Liberal government hasn't been without its faults.

But then, who doesn't break a few eggs while making an omelette?

"Sure we smashed some eggs," Chief Judy disclosed, "but we made a hell of a lot of omelettes."

Miss LaMarsh spent most of the 45-minute address recalling the Liberal-produced omelettes including the new flag, Canada Pension Plan, legislation curbing unemployment.

After four or five years of drift under the Conservatives, Canadians now have a direction and generally a better life under the Liberals, she added.

Sloops Dash Off In Race to Maui

By DON GAIN

A new yacht-racing event was born at midnight Tuesday when three B.C. sloops left Brochle Ledge for the island of Maui in Hawaii.

Athletic Park?

Verdict Coming Soon?

The fate of Victoria's Royal Athletic Park—and indirectly the use to which the city will put its centennial grants—may be disclosed next Tuesday.

At a suggestion by Mayor Wilson, the urban renewal committee decided to open a 9:30 a.m. committee meeting next Tuesday to any alderman outside the committee who "might be interested."

"What about Athletic Park? Are we going ahead with it or not?" asked Ald. M. H. Mooney.

PLANS DELAYED

City Manager Dennis Young indicated that urban renewal plans are being delayed until proposals for rebuilding and extending the fire-station sports park are completed.

If Victoria decides to repair the park, there is speculation the city fathers might want to use centennial funds.

A decision to use the birthday money at Royal Athletic Park would spell the end of a proposed intermunicipal centennial project.

One Victoria and two Vancouver yachts are expected to complete the 2,300-mile race in about 17 days.

Competing in the Victoria-Maui race are the 43-foot mast-head sloop Norena of Wight owned by Ronald Ramsey, 3805 Tudor; the 36-foot Lapworth sloop Long Gose owned by J. G. Innes of Vancouver and the 50-foot sloop Velaris owned by Lol Killam of Vancouver.

ODD YEARS

The yachtsmen hope to hold the race every other year in the years when the Trans-Pac race from California to Honolulu is not being sailed.

Friends dropped down to the Inner Harbor Tuesday night to say good-bye to the crew of Norena of Wight while they were waiting for the Vancouver boats to arrive.

Crewing with Skipper Ramsey, who is also the navigator, are Sidney commissioner Douglas Taylor, garage owner John Damgaard, pharmacist George West and tugboat mate Robert Muirhead.

NO NOVICE

Mr. Ramsey is no novice at ocean sailing, having skippered his sloop to Victoria from Europe several years ago.

"It's the trip of a lifetime," said Mr. Taylor. "John Damgaard and George West will fly back from Hawaii and we expect Patrick Leslie and his fiancée Lily Taylor to fly down and sail back with us."

USEFUL STUDY

Everybody in the crew has polished up his seamanship, he said.

"George even read up on how to take out an appendix. We find he's the only one in the crew who has one."

Saanich Farm

Plant Scourge Belies Fine Setting

To look at the lovely Thompson farm at 3191 Martindale, one would never realize a microscopic worm lurks there, striking fear in the hearts of Saanich farmers.

The worry was visible Tuesday on the face of John Thompson.

The worms, the golden nematode, has been discovered in the farm's potato crop.

QUARANTINED

While only three acres were found to be infested, the farm has been put under quarantine and authorities have embargoed all shipments from the island of plants or crops with soil.

The golden nematode is known as the "smallpox" of the plant world.

It attacks the fibrous roots of potatoes, tomatoes and eggplants, robbing the roots of nourishment and water, causing starvation and drought.

Mr. Thompson's farm is beautifully situated. Located at the end of Martindale Road, it overlooks the strait and the San Juan Islands.

Between the house and the embankment is a flower garden. In it photographer William Boucher found "the most perfect rose I have ever seen."

Mr. Thompson felt the press had been blowing up the menace right out of proportion.

TOO MUCH PRINTED

"You are looking for sensationalism," he said.

He felt the papers were worrying too much on so small matter.

"By the way, as you leave are you going to sterilize your shoes?" he asked recent visitors.

"The government men do."

Meeting Will Discuss Ban on Island Plants

A public meeting, called by provincial government officials, will be held at 8 p.m. today in the farmers' pavilion, Saanich Dominion Experimental Farm, to discuss the ban on island plants because of an outbreak of golden nematode on a Saanich farm.

Restless Hair Seal

Missing Herbie Frisking in Bay?

Is it Herbie that's been frisking in Cadboro Bay lately?

Employees of the Undersea Gardens haven't seen hide nor hair of their hair seal since he went missing Friday night, but boosters in Cadboro Bay figure they may have spotted him.

A friendly seal was surfacing in the area Sunday and Monday, but whether or not it was Herbie is virtually impossible to ascertain.

Gardens manager Bill Starkey has meanwhile been making plans to replace Herbie, and one of these days a pair of young seals will be back in the pen.

Marriage in Sight?

Victoria's Visitors' Bureau and Chamber of Commerce took a halting step toward marriage Tuesday during a meeting at City Hall.

Members of the two tourist-promoting groups and Victoria city council decided to instruct a sub-committee to prepare a report on the comparative aims, functions and finances of each group as a preliminary move toward amalgamation.

Committee chairman Ald. A. C. Savage said the report is expected to be ready for the next combined meeting in three weeks.

Original overtures for amalgamation were made by officials of the bureau last month.

The chamber responded guardedly at the time, and there was little change in attitude Tuesday.

Officials presented a series of letters from other cities in which the two functions are under one authority.

City Boys Second From 'Top'

The team representing three Greater Victoria high schools on Reach For The Top was second place on the television program Tuesday night and 1965 in scholarships for their schools.

The team lost out to the Chilliwack team by only a few points. Team members were William Salmond of Mount Douglas High, Darrie Turshara of Mount View, Danny Worley and Alan Hughes of Esquimalt.

Saanich To Buy Property?

Two pieces of land will be recommended for purchase by Saanich lands and planning committee at the next Saanich council meeting.

An $8,000 property at Cedar Hill Road and Pear Street for road extension and a .37-acre property for McKenzie Avenue extension between Simon Road and Ruby Road were recommended.

The committee also agreed to keep up the search in the Cordova Bay area for a piece of land large enough for a softball diamond.

Dockyard Pay 'Same as Yarrows'

Winch's Rate Claims Criticized by Officer

Harold Winch, M.P., has been talking through his hat about HMC Dockyard wage rates, a senior naval officer said here Tuesday night.

Commodore Superintendent H. A. Winnett reacted sharply to the New Democratic member's charge that the defence department is "quite legally stealing" $1,500 a year from electricians employed at the dockyard, by paying them wages lower than they would earn outside.

"We pay pure maintenance rates, exactly the same as Yarrows and VMD," said the commodore. "We don't pay construction rates because we don't have any construction."

IN COMMONS

Mr. Winch, member for Vancouver East, complained in the Commons Monday night that the men are entitled to the prevailing rate of $3.35 an hour as inside wiremen but the navy insists on classing them as marine electricians at a $3.05 rate.

"These men never go aboard a ship," Mr. Winch said.

Also, electrical linemen in the yard were getting $2.95 an hour while "just outside the fence" B.C. Hydro linemen were paid $3.42.

The MP appealed to Defence Minister Hellyer to remedy the situation.

NO COMMENT

William Isbister of the electricians' union declined to comment on Mr. Winch's charge.

Commodore Winnett said government policy is to follow agreements arrived at between unions and outside firms, and observed that that was hardly stealing.

"Mr. Winch is talking through his hat," he said. "I'm leaving the service in three weeks—I don't care."

Esquimalt-View Royal

Independent Probe Topic at 'Summit'

Appointment of an independent representative to examine pros and cons of Esquimalt-View Royal amalgamation will be discussed today.

Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell, Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele and View Royal representative Gar Bulmer will meet at 3 p.m.

MOVE AGREED

The move was agreed upon at an in-camera meeting Monday night.

One of the thorny issues so far in amalgamation talks is the proposal by View Royal of a split mill rate, lower than that of Esquimalt, until full services can be supplied to residents of View Royal.

SHOULD SHAKE

During talks Monday night, it was pointed out that Esquimalt had certain capital charges in which View Royal should share.

View Royal representatives said there were many people in their district who were on fixed incomes, and an immediate jump to the same mill rate as Esquimalt would create hardship.

STUDY SOUGHT

Reeve A. C. Wurtele said Tuesday night that if the minister approved of the idea of an independent survey, findings would indicate just what sort of a deal there would be for View Royal in amalgamation.

One man suggested as independent representative is B. C. Bracewell, former deputy minister of municipal affairs.

OTHER PROPOSAL

Only other proposal advanced so far by View Royal would be formation of a town, but rate-payers at a previous meeting voted to bide their time until amalgamation talks could be held with Esquimalt.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Hayes, 1455 Hillside Avenue, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Florence Elizabeth, to Mr. Philip Edward Percival, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Percival, 1965 Colwood Crescent. The wedding is to take place July 31 at 2 p.m. in St. Alban's Church, with Rev. F. Hayes officiating. —(Kandid Kamera)

Mrs. Joyce M. Hatcher, 460 Nelson Street, announces the engagement of their daughter, Kathryn Elizabeth, to Charles Roland Spiers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland C. Spiers of Winnipeg, Man. The marriage is to take place July 31 at 8 p.m. in Esquimalt United Church. —(Don Ryan Photos)

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. A. Reid, Ganges, B.C., announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Elizabeth (Beth) Josephine, to Mr. E. Spencer Ahrens, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Keith Ahrens of Everett, Wash. The wedding is to take place July 17 at 2 p.m. in Ganges United Church, Salt Spring Island, with Rev. Ray Ashford officiating.

Air Traveller Safer On High

By PATRICIA MCGORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI)—David C. Quinn gets flighty when he talks. Listen:

"Many husbands and wives drive to an airport in the same car and then take separate planes. You know, in case the plane should crash."

"What they should do is drive to the airport in separate cars and fly in the same plane. Flying is that much safer than driving."

Quinn, a former navy pilot, is president of the Airways Club, a unit devoted to the safety and convenience of airline passengers.

A lawyer, he realized in 1960 there was a need for such an organization and started it. The club now has 25,000 members, including more than two dozen congressmen, a few senators, an entire American League baseball team and thousands of businessmen.

"The typical member," he said, "flies 28 times a year and spends at least $3,000 a year on air fares. Members have a vital interest in air safety."

"One of our jobs is to convince the American public that there is no need to fear flying. In this jet age, only 25 per cent of the people in America have ever flown on a commercial plane."

Quinn maintains that noise abatement and the fear of flying inextricably are linked together.

"What many homeowners really subconsciously fear is that one day a jet will fall out of the sky and land on their houses. The smart way for that to happen is for them to insist on more noise abatement steps."

He said that at most airports, safety considerations prohibit giving another inch in noise reduction. That is, unless it can be accomplished mechanically.

"For example," he said, "at New York's Kennedy airport, pilots are called upon to perform maneuvers that are unsafe at the present time."

"These include power cut-backs to reduce noise, banking turns to get out over the ocean quickly. And still, the nearby residents clamor for more noise reduction."

"The situation is similar in Chicago, San Francisco and other cities. We're opposed to endangering the lives of airline passengers in the never-ending cry for noise abatement by a tiny but active minority."

Quinn noted that the Airways Club, within the last year, has been at least partially responsible for two victories on behalf of airline passengers.

He said most airlines now have abandoned using JP-4 jet fuel, a mixture of kerosene and aviation gas, in favor of pure kerosene fuel.

The club, according to Quinn, joins many independent fuel experts in the belief that kerosene is the safer fuel.

Also, the club's campaign for increased baggage allowances is bearing fruit. One airline has filed for permission to allow each passenger two suitcases, regardless of weight.

"Other airlines seem inclined to raise the baggage allowance from 40 pounds per person," Quinn said.

Feminine, frilly beach headgear is running rampant this season. A water lily effect, left, features an easy stretch rubber cap with sculptured petals framing the face. The sleek swim helmet, centre, of tricolored nylon hugs the head for a turban look. A fuzzy nylon tricot and synthetic straw, right, looks pert and keeps its shape even after hours in water.

Wild Caps Are "In"

Beatle Mops, Bows for Bathing

By MARY BETH JOHNSON

Yesterday's skin-head look in swim caps is passé, to the delight of female swimmers. Today's milady may be capped in petals, lace, tulle or straw—look beautiful and keep her hair dry—all at the same time.

In addition to its primary function, the caps this season enhance the swim ensembles. A regular Horn of Plenty awaits the cap-shopping bathing beauty.

They come in every imaginable texture, color and shape.

An especially pretty cap is a fluff of pink, blue, yellow or white nylon net. Now upon row of the narrow ruffles are sewn to the head-baring liner. For a change, the ruffled outer cap may be detached, showing the attractive rubber liner.

Another favorite is one with detachable plastic spider mums on a solid-colored rubber cap. The colors in this headgear range from a combination of chartreuse and lemon-yellow to soft pink and rose.

In step with the current popularity of the blue-green combination, is a rubber prohibition of flowers. The sculptured petals frame the face, and the soft material stretches to fit every head size.

Other manufacturers are applying mixtures of water repellent taffeta ruffles and metallic crowns.

More to the liking of the surfer set, if they could be talked into wearing caps at all, would be a port sunbather style. The small-brimmed daisy with bands of polka dots, plaid or gay prints complement surfer suits.

Not everyone can wear the dramatic new swim helmet of stretch nylon. Fashioned with layer of material, it resembles a turban. The tricolored cap is water-proof and available in red and navy, black and brown, turquoise and green, blue and navy—such combination has a middle band of white.

Some of the tress protectors are wild. One is a golden or orange wig (stringy and ugly) mounted on a rubber liner. The finishing touch is a bow in a variety of gaudy colors.

Boy beach buns are the main purchasers of these wigs, known as "Beatle Mops."

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: You've heard the story thousands of times. Middle-aged man (early 50s), woman in her 30s—both married. We have been desperately, madly, hopelessly in love for three years. Her husband is a fine guy. My wife is a lovely woman. Divorce is out of the question.

I know your answer. Break it off. Well, I can't break it off and neither can she. We've tried—really tried. But what happened. I got physically ill. Can't eat. Can't sleep. Can't work. When we stay away from each other for more than a few days we are both so miserable life isn't worth living. We rush back to each other like a couple of high school kids.

We know there is no good ending to this. But what can we do? This woman has given me ecstasy I've never known. When she is in my arms I'm as close to heaven as any mortal can be. I'm ten feet tall and 20 years old. Any suggestions?

—IN LOVE

Dear In Love: You've anticipated my advice and rejected it. So I have no words for you—only sympathy.

I am printing your letter for the benefit of others who may be toying with the idea that a little extra-curricular activity might add glamour and excitement to their lackluster lives. The best way to avoid the agony is to forego the "ecstasy."

Dear Ann Landers: What makes an adult incapable of telling anything straight? I hate to call my husband a liar but I am shocked by the way he deviates from the facts.

Ned comes from a large family and they all have this deplorable habit. Don't they realize how it sounds to those who were present?

I would never embarrass Ned in the presence of others and say, "No, dear, it wasn't like that—" but I have pleaded with him in private to please stop exaggerating. It hasn't helped. Why?—PRO-TRUTH

Dear Pro: People who embellish the facts beyond recognition want desperately to impress and/or assume and they don't trust the straight story to do the job.

Exaggerators and distorters earn a reputation for irresponsibility or obsequiousness and no one takes them seriously. This is a high price to pay for a brief moment in the spotlight.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Major and Mrs. E. P. Roberts, Wellview Road, entertained in honor of their visitors, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Morris of Burnley, Lancashire, England, who were celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary during their visit to Canada. Following their visit here, Mr. and Mrs. Morris will drive to Calgary with their host and hostess, and from there will travel by plane to Toronto en route to England.

Return from Europe

Major and Mrs. E. A. Wines and their children, Heather, 6, and Shirley, 4, are visiting Mrs. Wines' parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Powell in Victoria for two weeks. They have just returned from Metz, where Major Wines was stationed with the Army for the past two years, following a year's posting in England.

Cousins Meet

Three cousins were together for the first time when they met at the Regency Apartment home of Miss Virginia Ross. Mrs. Jeanne Hoshel came from Denver, Colorado, and Miss Elizabeth Mitchell from San Francisco. The trio will tour the Vancouver area together.

Tsartlip Chief Marries

In the Church of Our Lady of the Assumption, Father William Madge heard marriage vows of Frances, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Elliot, West Saanich Road, and Chief Philip Paul of the Tsartlip Indians Band, son of Mr. Christopher Paul and the late Mrs. Paul.

Missop Remi de Roo was also in attendance.

For the double ring ceremony, the bride wore a classic floor-length gown of white lace and tulle, with long sleeves and full skirt. A bouquet veil was gathered to a simple headpiece, and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mr. Elliot gave his daughter in marriage, and her only attendant was her sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles Elliot, who was groomed in pink.

Mr. Edward Paul was best man for his cousin. The bride's brother, Mr. David Elliot Jr., ushered with the groom's cousin, Mr. David Paul. At a reception following the ceremony, Father Madge proposed the toast to the bride. Chief Ed Underwood also addressed the guests.

Later Chief Paul and his bride left for a honeymoon in Bel-Ragham. They plan to make their home in Saanich.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Smotherst, 827 Lampson, announce the forthcoming marriage of their youngest daughter, Jeannette Marguerite, to Mr. Donald Tracy Lane, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Lane of High River, Alta. The wedding will take place on Saturday, July 10 at 7:30 p.m. in Central Baptist Church. Catholic Show

Photographers Ignore Sister Without Habit

LONDON (AP)—Roman Catholic nuns today modelled habits in a fashion show of sorts' wear through the centuries.

"No such fashion show has ever been held in Britain before," said a spokesman.

It was part of an exhibition called Challenge '65, sponsored by the council of Roman Catholic Religious Orders of England and Wales.

Introducing the fashion parade, Rev. B. E. Stevin described it as a sister's party. The audience consisted of nuns, housewives and a sprinkling of men.

Twenty-three religious orders took part in the show, which presented not only a nun's habit based on the court costume of King Louis XIV but also a stylish, modern grey outfit with a hemline several inches above the shoes.

One nun wore ruffled-looking glasses to match her modern head dress, fashioned from up-to-date drip-dry synthetic material.

An ultra-modern touch was provided by a smiling member of the Little Sisters of the Assumption. She pushed a scooter to the edge of the stage and climbed on the platform wearing a raincoat and crash helmet. There was one order, however, which could not participate in the show because its members have no habit. They dress in ordinary street dress. Explained Mother Jeanne Watters of the Daughters of the Heart of Mary: "My order was founded in France during the French Revolution when any nun wearing a habit would have been persecuted. To this day we all wear the dress of the outside world."

She had trouble trying to put herself in the picture. Every time she tried to pose with other nuns, photographers tried to escort her from the group. This happened three times before she finally convinced the photographers she is really a nun.

Students In Music Recital

Student musical recital and party was held at the home of Mrs. Madeleine Till, Birch Road, Deep Cove.

Those taking part in the piano, song and cello recital were: Emilee Gessner, Gary Russell, Lynda Clarke, Mark Bourne, John Forre, Judy Jarmen, Adele Jakeman, John Russell, Stuart Hammelaga, Gwynor Masters, Timmy Lott, Patricia Atkinson, Brenda Wilson, Jane Buckle, Jill Treleway, Robin Bourne, Daphne Treleway, Anna Stricker, Greg Russell, Barbara Wilson.

Mrs. Beatrice Chappell presented certificates from the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto, for theory: first class honors to Gregory Russell, Donald Russell and Barbara Wilson; piano honors, Barbara Wilson.

Pins for excellence in theory were awarded to Patricia Atkinson, Stuart Hammelaga, Gwynor Masters, Brenda Wilson, Anna Stricker, and Perry Thachuk. Timmy Lott won first prize in a musical game, with Lynda Clarke second.

Mrs. R. G. Evans, the former Susanne Jane McLean, whose marriage took place recently in St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church. The bride is the daughter of Surgeon Rear-Admiral and Mrs. T. Blair McLean and Mr. Evans is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Evans of Ottawa.

EATON'S

No Dating Alone For Miss World

By PATRICIA McORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Corinna Tsopei, officially the most beautiful girl in the world, never has been out on a date alone.

She said so during an interview on her 21st birthday.

"The idea will strike most American teen-agers as Greek, as you say in this country. But I believe it is a good system to have a relative or friend accompany a girl on a date."

The system, by the way, is pure Greek, enforced lovingly by Miss Tsopei's parents at their home in Athens. Her sister, 19, also must have a chaperone when she dates.

"The older I get, the wiser I see my parents have been along this line," she said. "Sometimes I cried about the rule and my father, a colonel in the Greek army, wasn't moved."

"He always said it is better to cry now so I can be happy tomorrow—in the years when I would be mature, enough for romance."

The system is one Miss Tsopei feels could benefit American teen-agers. During the last year, she has gone around the world 10 times and visited 13 countries.

"Teen-agers in America," she said, "have too much freedom, more than teen-agers anywhere have. They don't know how to use this freedom because they are not old enough."

"When a girl is 16 she isn't of an age to be able to go out alone with a boy. Are any teen-agers able to? I don't think so. Many American parents do not seem to understand this. I would like to see them enforce the chaperone rule. There would be fewer problems now, much happier later."

Miss Tsopei, who studied "lots of Greek, Latin and mathematics" in high school, aims for a career as a model or movie star when her reign as Miss Universe ends July 24. That is when the new Miss Universe will be crowned during a CBS telecast.

The dark-haired beauty with the classic measurements—36-23-35—may go to acting school. Her prizes included enough for tuition—$10,000 from a personal appearance contract and $7,500 as a cash gift.

"I will marry," she said, "when I am old enough and when I find a man who is good for me."

"He will need to be kind, have a good heart, care for me very much and have a little money. Money isn't everything but it helps for the good life."

Will her sister right be tall, short, blue or brown eyed, handsome?

"The appearance doesn't so much matter," she assured. "He doesn't have to be very much handsome if he has all the other qualities."

Honeymoon In Banff

Now on a wedding trip to Banff are Mr. Herbert Keith Harrison and his bride, the former Karen Louise Robinson, who were married in St. John's Anglican Church.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Robinson, Vimy Avenue, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Harrison, Synod Road. Canon George Biddle officiated at the afternoon ceremony at which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Her gown was of white lace over silk tulle, the bodice fashioned with scoop neckline and ribbon-length sleeves. A bridal bow of silk tulle encircled the Empire waist, over a slightly belted skirt. A rose of French organza held her tiered veil of silk tulle, and she carried a crescent bouquet of white roses, created with gardenias.

Mrs. Bruce Corbett, matron of honor, and Miss Lila Israel, bridesmaid, were identical short gowns of blue and turquoise taffeta. Their headpieces were of matching floral chiffon and they carried Colonial bouquets of pink feathered carnations.

The groom's sister, Miss Kathy Harrison, was flower girl, and wore a similar short gown of blue chiffon over tulle, with a taffeta cummerbund. She wore a white coronet in her hair and carried a white basket of pink carnations with freesia.

Mr. Jim Harrison was best man for his brother, and the bride's brother, Mr. Ken Robinson, ushered with Mr. Ken Harrison, the groom's cousin. At a reception in the Terra Cotta Room of the Dominion Hotel, the bride and groom cut a four-tier wedding cake made by a family friend, Mrs. W. Stephenson. The bride's uncle, Mr. Frank Barnaley of Vancouver, proposed the toast.

As the couple left later on their honeymoon, the bride wore a pale blue Italian knit suit with chiffon floral hat on knee, white accessories, and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Returning to Victoria, the newlyweds will live at the Princess Charlotte Apartments, Lampeon Street.

Picnic Date Announced

At a meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Pat Branch, No. 21, Royal Canadian Legion, four new members were initiated. They were Mrs. V. M. Barry, Mrs. I. J. Dickson, Mrs. M. Fednas, and Mrs. L. Sekere.

A report of the Zone Council meeting held at Langford, was given by Mrs. O. Berrard.

It was announced that the Veterans' annual picnic will be held July 11 at the Rogers Field Site, Metcalm.

Elected

Mr. Jim Mead-Robins was elected president of the Gilbert and Sullivan Society at the annual meeting held recently in the club rooms at 2384 Murray Drive.

Other officers are Mrs. T. Hurty, secretary; Mr. Fred Cox, treasurer; Mrs. J. Cox, social director; Mr. Jim Yeomans and Mr. Ivan Howell, program directors and Mrs. Dave Shearer, librarian.

It matters not how many technical problems we solve or surmount, there will be no peace and little real progress in the world until we are able to make the optimum equation between freedom and order in human society.

We believe what we fear, and we fear what we do not know; the ancient half-truth that "knowledge is power" should be revised to read "knowledge is acceptance of others."

In times of misfortune, we are prone to reflect that we do not deserve such unhappiness; but in times of felicity, it rarely occurs to us that we are guilty of underestimating such happiness.

Speaking of words, as I was yesterday, recalled Joseph de Maistre's warning, after his study of history and philology: "Every individual or national degeneration is immediately revealed by a directly proportional degradation in language."

It is a mistake to believe that the feeling called "love" connotes the same thing to a man and to a woman; as one example among many differences, a woman prefers being ill-treated by a man she cares for to being indulged by a man she is indifferent to; whereas few men, whose love has more vanity and less self-abnegation, would long tolerate such a condition.

Fame does not satisfy its most lavish recipients, but it prevents them from ever again being satisfied with obscurity.

Teaching children to suppress their generous emotions is much worse than allowing them to be flooded or victimized; they will naturally learn to guard against the latter as they get older, but once generosity has been constricted into suspicion, they remain the same thing to a man and to a woman; as one example among many differences, a woman prefers being ill-treated by a man she cares for to being indulged by a man she is indifferent to; whereas few men, whose love has more vanity and less self-abnegation, would long tolerate such a condition.

Those who overvalue "experience" as a thing in itself should pay heed to Joubert's observation: "Few men are worthy of experience—the majority let it corrupt them."

If we removed the criminal elements from the history books, there would hardly be enough left to fill a primer; nine-tenths of the "drama" in history are dates of folly, fratricide, dishonesty, iniquity, low cunning and reversions to barbarism.

Whatever happened to the old-fashioned slang word, "hummer," which described a certain type of person in a way that has no synonym?

Holiday Chores

By M. V. CHESNUT

It seems a bit strange to be getting a holiday in the middle of the week, for so many of our statutory holidays have been juggled around to fall on a Monday, thereby making a lovely long weekend. Following tomorrow's holiday, I wouldn't be surprised if a lot of folks played hockey from work on Friday to make this one a long, LONG weekend!

In our family, we have gotten out of the habit of taking off in the car for out-of-town trips on the public holidays and holiday weekends.

For one thing, those statistical forecasts put out by the Canada Safety Council on how many lives will be lost over the holiday have scared the living daylights out of us. We like to travel, but whenever possible we do our out-of-town driving at times when there aren't so many people on the road.

We'll spend a lazy holiday at home tomorrow, lazing and pottering around at those inconsequential little chores which, in the aggregate, put the split and polish on the garden's appearance.

One of these not-very-important projects I have in mind is to do a bit of tidying up where our front walk crosses the lawn. The walk is level with the lawn so I can run the lawn mower over it, so the grass doesn't grow tall where it edges the walk and it isn't necessary to reduce its height by hand-clipping, but the grass is encroaching on the sidewalk nonetheless, laying flat so the mower can't touch it. The whole thing has a ragged, untidy appearance, and I propose to correct this by cutting a little gutter, about two inches wide, alongside the path on both sides, using the half-moon edging iron to do the job.

There are other parts of the garden, though, where hand-clipping is becoming a tedious chore. The backyard fence is one of these trouble spots — we can't mow very close to the fence, and the grass grows with embarrassing vigor under and through the pickets where it is a flimsy, miserable job to clip it. I have a new garden product — a manufacturer's free sample — designed specifically for this sort of situation, and I propose to try it tomorrow.

This product, called E-Z Edge, is a composition tape impregnated with chemicals that kill the grass and sterilize the soil so nothing can grow. The tape is stretched on the ground along the line where control is desired — in my case, under the fence — and is watered with a fine spray.

The tape is supposed to dissolve almost instantly, carrying the chemical into the soil where it sterilizes a band four inches wide in which no grass or weed or any other plant can grow. The effect lasts for about three years, according to the label.

Dogs are getting to be quite a nuisance in our neighborhood these days, and our dwarf evergreen shrubs have been taking quite a beating from their attention. I bought an aerosol can of dog repellent a couple of weeks ago but didn't get around to use it yet, so this is another minor chore for tomorrow.

One important fact I have learned about dog repellents: Always buy the stuff in an aerosol bomb. I bought some of the liquid concentrate last year to use in my garden sprayer, and it took me the best part of a week to clean the city residue out of the sprayer nozzle so I could use it for other purposes. The aerosol costs a bit more, but at least your sprayer doesn't get gummed up.

Words of Wisdom

SYDNEY HARRIS

Freedom and order in human society.

The chief difference between a politician and a statesman is that the latter never tells a lie that he doesn't first believe himself.

A play must be an organic creation, like a person, or it will not be viable; when a play collapses in its third act, it is because the first act was improperly conceived — just as a person falls apart in middle age because his childhood failed to consolidate his personality.

It is a mistake to believe that the feeling called "love" connotes the same thing to a man and to a woman; as one example among many differences, a woman prefers being ill-treated by a man she cares for to being indulged by a man she is indifferent to; whereas few men, whose love has more vanity and less self-abnegation, would long tolerate such a condition.

Fame does not satisfy its most lavish recipients, but it prevents them from ever again being satisfied with obscurity.

Teaching children to suppress their generous emotions is much worse than allowing them to be flooded or victimized; they will naturally learn to guard against the latter as they get older, but once generosity has been constricted into suspicion, they remain the same thing to a man and to a woman; as one example among many differences, a woman prefers being ill-treated by a man she cares for to being indulged by a man she is indifferent to; whereas few men, whose love has more vanity and less self-abnegation, would long tolerate such a condition.

SHEILAH GRAHAM Talks to SEAN CONNERY

'007' Increases Fee

LONDON (NANA)—"If I sign another contract to play James Bond," said Sean Connery, "I'll do it for $11,000,000 ($2,800,000) and a percentage." Sean was relaxing on the set of the almost completed Thunderball, his fourth as Agent 007. "I've led too many, too long for too little," he continued. "And it's getting to be too much. I have two more to make on the present contract (for which I understand he is now being paid $750,000 each).

"At the beginning with Dr. No it was a simple thing," I had a cocktail with Sean at the Connaught Hotel here the day he first signed for the role, along with the producer, Harry Saltzman and Cubby Broccoli. He was quiet and unassuming and had to dash off for rehearsals for a play he was planning. I had never heard of him then and the producers talked him up for my benefit. Now Sean is still unassuming although he has told his bosses that he will give no more interviews on the subject of Bond. When I heard this I merely walked on the set to visit my other friends in the picture. When Sean came along to work in his scene, I simply said HELLO, and got a big hello in return. He sat down, and we chatted—about Bond.

"Now," he continued, "each picture takes at least six months to make and that doesn't leave too much time for anything else. I'm supposed to do one Bond a year. It will now be one every 18 months. Otherwise, I can't do the things I want to. Don't get me wrong, I like the part. But unless I get the $11,000,000 and the prestige I am asking for, they'll have to find another boy. When this one is finished, I will have a brief vacation, then I go to New York to make a TV special, then I go to Hollywood for a movie with Jack Warner. Then I do two Greek plays at Oxford University. One is modern, the other is something by Euripides. Decca Records wants to sign me for some songs. I'll sign if the deal is right. I'm Scotch and the money is important."

Sean's conversation about his future was in the "T" category. So I naturally wondered about his wife Diana. Diana with whom he recently reconciled after a brief separation. "How is your family life?" I asked the most virile star on the screen today. There was the merest pause. "Diane will be in Rome for a month, the children flew there a few days ago to stay with her." Nothing about her going to America with him and I didn't ask because if Sean is like the tough man he plays in the Bond stories, well, anything could happen and I'd rather not find out.

Sean talked more about the recent Cannes film festival where his recent movie, The Hill was shown. "We didn't win anything and The Hill is a fine picture. In my opinion the whole thing was definitely anti-British. Olivia de Havilland, who was one of the judges with Rex Harrison, thought so, too. It was the first film festival I ever attended and it will be the last. If you only knew the machinations that went on backstage. We heard that some American producers insisted on certain awards or they would never come to Cannes again. Talk to Olivia or Rex when you see them. You'll get a fascinating story."

Veterans Scoop TV Honors

By ECK DUBROW

Since the current television season is just about over, it seems only right to single out, as is traditional, some of the best performers who have graced the home screen in recent months. They include:

—James Cagney, a fine actor who was more sympathetic as a gangster than most modern-day performers are as heroes.

—Fred Astaire, a nifty dancer who is often seen to excellent advantage with his partner, Ginger Rogers.

—William Powell, who certainly is a good detective.

—Myrna Loy, who certainly is a lady and sexy, and a sexy lady.

—S. Z. (Oodles) Sakall, who generated more lovely sentimental warmth and exquisitely schmaltzy "gentleheart" than any other movie character actor who ever lived.

—Robert Montgomery, who, someday, when his stunning virtuosity as an impeccably cool dramatic and comedy actor is re-evaluated, will surely be the object of cult-like adoration on the order of that accorded Humphrey Bogart.

—Bogart, Peter Lorre and Sidney Greenstreet, three very choice fellows, and don't forget Elisha Cook Jr., who was with them in The Maltese Falcon.

—Mae West and W. C. Fields, who were even funnier than Grata Garbo and Melvyn Douglas, who weren't bad either, you know.

—Edward G. Robinson, who really wasn't a gangster as much as it seemed during his career, and is a wonderfully touching actor.

—Gary Cooper, who, despite his image as a western star, was an altogether splendid comedy actor, and was perhaps at his true natural best in these roles.

—Lloyd Nolan, a consummate professional whose little detective movies are still a fine and amusing diversion today.

—Fred Allen and the Marx Brothers, kindred souls.

—Frank Lovejoy and Lynne Overman, two gentlemen with classical world-weariness, one dramatic, the other comic, both memorable.

—Johnnie Weisbender: Him Tarzan. Him only Tarzan.

As for the best rerun on television, it was the same this season as it was the season before, and the season before that, and as it will be for ever and ever—the movie The Philadelphia Story.

As you can see, television turns out some excellent stuff.

By George!

DEAR GEORGE: Every time my wife gets mad at me she packs and goes home to her mother. This has gone on for seven years of our marriage and it wasn't so bad when her mother only lived across town. I got a little peace and quiet now and then.

Now, however, her mother has moved 800 miles away and the expense is killing me. Any suggestions, George?—BROKE

DEAR BROKE: Perhaps you could work out some arrangement whereby when your wife got mad she could go home to your mother. Or you might sit down with her, explain the budget problem and determine if she has a friend who has a mother, perhaps nearby in the neighborhood, she could go to.

Another solution would be to discuss this with other husbands of your acquaintance and form a Mother-of-the-Month Club where all angry wives could go on alternating months.

It might also be possible to check with an employment agency and hire a mother. In the long run, however, it might be even more economical to use a rental mother, saving constant upkeep.

No Provincial Funds

B.C. Reverses Stand on Bank

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Premier Bennett said Tuesday that the British Columbia government is prepared to ensure that there is no government investment in the proposed Bank of B.C.

In an interview here the premier said "We won't defy the laws of the land."

"We want the Bank of B.C. and will leave no stone unturned in removing all obstacles to granting the charter."

"We will do nothing that would prevent the charter being granted and there will be no government investment in the bank if this is what the federal government desires."

Mr. Bennett's statement is a reversal of provincial government proposals in the past for investment of up to first 25 per cent then 10 per cent of the share capital of the bank that was first proposed in 1964. The reference to the federal government is Finance Minister Gordon's proposal to forbid provincial government investment in any chartered bank.

FAVREAU DOWN, NOT OUT

Portfolio Switch Indicated

OTTAWA (CP)—Former justice minister Guy Favreau is willing to stay on in some other cabinet post, Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday.

Mr. Pearson told the Commons Mr. Favreau submitted his resignation earlier in the day following receipt of the report dealing with charges of attempted bribery and influence-peddling by federal ministerial aides.

Mr. Pearson said that, "with deep regret," he will advise Governor-General Vanier to accept the resignation.

After the announcement of Mr. Favreau's resignation as minister of justice, there was prolonged applause from the Liberal MPs. Mr. Favreau sat at his desk on Mr. Pearson's left, sipping a glass of water. Then Mr. Pearson told the House he has asked Mr. Favreau to remain in the government in some other portfolio. He read a letter from Mr. Favreau agreeing to take some other cabinet post.

Mr. Favreau, Mr. Pearson said, was "a man of unimpeachable integrity and unshakable honor."

DEVOTED SERVANT

"He is a devoted and unselfish servant of Canada and of his own province," Mr. Pearson said.

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Favreau had entered politics partly at

Comfort on Longest Day

OTTAWA (CP)—Guy Favreau spent the longest hour of his life Tuesday night as he heard his resignation formally announced in the Commons by Prime Minister Pearson and then listened to four opposition speakers discuss his conduct.

Through it all the 47-year-old Quebec leader of the Liberal party moved about in his green leather chair, sometimes leaning back with a yawn, sometimes cupping his hand in his chin.

He appeared to be making an effort to look relaxed. But his movements were tense and his face drawn. He looked up toward the well-filled galleries, toward the prime minister.

He sipped a glass of water when Mr. Pearson announced "with deep regret" that his resignation had been accepted.

Mr. Favreau appeared moved when Mr. Pearson referred to him as "a man of unimpeachable integrity and unshakable honor."

Several Liberal members sent notes to Mr. Favreau. He acknowledged them with an appreciative smile.

He didn't look directly at Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) when the Conservative member followed the prime minister. It was Mr. Nielsen whose disclosures resulted in the Dorion inquiry.

When the last opposition spokesman, Gilles Giguere (Creditiste-Lapointe) had sat down, several Liberal front-benchers went over to Mr. Favreau to speak to him.

In the main corridor, a battery of photographers and reporters waited.

"Was this the toughest day of your career?" asked a reporter.

Mr. Favreau smiled wearily.

John D: 'Tap On Wrist'

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker told a Conservative banquet Tuesday Prime Minister Pearson's acceptance of Justice Minister Favreau's resignation was just a "tap on the wrist" and showed "a lack of moral principle."

"Now what has happened? The prime minister stands up tonight and says 'happy days are here again'... the minister of justice sent me his resignation this morning. I accepted it and in a few days I'll be appointing him to another portfolio."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the portfolio change was a "tap on the wrist" and the move "out of justice into another department... can't be justified—you don't become perfection by being transferred."

Was the last hour the longest?
Mr. Favreau nodded. Why did you decide to resign?

"I thought that in the circumstances I would be more useful elsewhere because of the atmosphere that had been created."

Surrounded by reporters amid a forest of microphones, Mr. Favreau decided there was little more he could say.

"But I want to say this. My colleagues, and all of the caucus, led by the prime minister, have been—well, they have been just plain wonderful."

Dorion Report Highlights

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of the findings of Chief Justice Frederic Dorion's judicial inquiry into allegations of influence peddling in the government service:

Justice Minister Favreau's judgment is questioned for taking it upon himself to decide against prosecution in connection with bribery allegations last September.

Favreau was justified in thinking, on the basis of evidence available then but not followed up, that a charge would be difficult to prove.

Conduct of then immigration minister Rene Tremblay was "absolutely beyond reproach."

There "cannot be any doubt" that Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to Tremblay, offered a $20,000 bribe to "obstruct the course of justice" in the case of narcotics-smuggling suspect Lucien Rivard.

Guy Lord, Montreal Liberal MP and then parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, committed a "reprehensible act" in trying to use his influence to get Rivard out of jail on bail, but his action was not criminal.

There is prima facie evidence of an offence under the Criminal Code. Though the investigator does not say who might have committed it.

Andre Letendre, then and still executive assistant to Favreau, was guilty of "reprehensible" but not "malicious" conduct in intervening with Lamontagne on behalf of bail for Rivard.

Guy Lord, special assistant to the justice minister at the time, acted imprudently but not reprehensibly in putting pressure on Mr. Lamontagne.

The RCMP's investigation methods and Commissioner George McClellan's methods of interpreting the evidence in conjunction with the justice minister are criticized.

The RCMP's use of English-language investigators to question French-speaking persons is described as "extraordinary."

There is no doubt that Rivard's wife and three associates—Eddy Lechasseur, an "importer" with a criminal record; Robert Gignac, a suspect in a murder case, and Guy Masson, a fringe Liberal politician at Montreal—conspired to obstruct the course of justice.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Dorion report blasted Justice Minister Guy Favreau from his post Tuesday.

It also put the heat on Liberal MP Guy Rouleau, the RCMP, three present or former ministerial aides and others for their conduct in the Lucien Rivard affair.

Without specifying individuals, Chief Justice Frederic Dorion said there are grounds for criminal charges. He named four persons he said had conspired to obstruct justice and said these and others had lied under oath before his royal commission.

Little more than four hours after the scathing report was tabled in the Commons, Prime Minister Pearson announced the justice minister's resignation. The opposition had already been demanding just that.

Others may be asked as a result of the 140-page report. Others may end up in court.

BRIBE, PRESSURE

Mr. Lamontagne said he had been offered a $20,000 bribe and subjected to political pressure from Ottawa to agree to release on bail last summer of Rivard, then held for the United States on charges of running a $50,000,000 dope-smuggling racket for the Mafia crime syndicate.

Mr. Lamontagne was acting for the U.S. in Rivard's extradition hearings. Rivard broke jail March 2. There is a $15,000 price on his head.

TICKED OFF

The chief justice of the Quebec Superior Court, appointed by the federal government last November to investigate Mr. Lamontagne's charges and Mr. Favreau's and the RCMP's conduct as a result of them, ticked off nearly all the principals.

He said Mr. Favreau should have consulted his departmental advisers before deciding alone last Sept. 18 that charges should not be laid.

'SEEK FACTS'

The minister should have instructed his department "to complete the search for facts."

The report said Mr. Favreau was in a "position of being influenced" by his relations with persons charged by Mr. Lamontagne with having tried to induce him to let Rivard go on bail.

These persons were, Raymond Denis, executive assistant to the immigration minister who was fired last October, Mr. Rouleau and Andre Letendre, still executive assistant to Mr. Favreau, and Guy Lord, at that time special assistant to the justice minister.

DON'T TELL RCMP

The report said Mr. Favreau hadn't told the RCMP to hunt for other facts which would have completed the information obtained up to Sept. 18.

It also questioned the joint reasoning of Mr. Favreau and RCMP commissioner G. B. McClellan in assessing evidence when they agreed then that

Tourist Boom

Project Opened July 16

NANAIMO (CP)—A $1,000,000 harbor development project here will be officially opened July 16 by Nanaimo Harbor Commissioners.

Construction of the wharf and 12-acre storage yard cost $400,000, dredging cost $150,000, and roads and sewers to service the berth cost $50,000.

Harbor Master John Dunham said the project may be completed a few days before the official opening date.

Fulford Speaker

Haidas Took Slaves

FULFORD—Mrs. Rupert Grissel of Prince Rupert, received a warm welcome from 50 people who attended her lecture on Haida Indians. She is an honorary Haida member.

Her subject, "Amongst the Haidas," gave an insight into the very complicated affairs of the tribe, and she showed pictures of various phases of their life, and some very lovely views of Prince Rupert, its rugged country and golden sunsets on the sea.

Mrs. Grissel is a member of the Caledonian W.A. St. Mary's Choir members, who sponsored the evening, served refreshments after the lecture was over.

At one interesting part of her talk, Mrs. Grissel said the Haidas had slaves in the past, "taken no doubt," she said, "from among the Coast Indians."

It is well known in history, that Haidas once came to the Coast and sometimes succeeded in returning home with captured slaves.

This happened up to the 1800s even while Salt Spring Island was beginning to be settled by white pioneers.

COURTENAY—At a chamber of commerce meeting here recently a committee composed of Randy Klaver, Derek Rhind and Ron Watson agreed to produce a chamber float for the July 1 parade, in the 50th anniversary of Courtenay's founding.

The tourist bureau reports nearly twice the number of tourists have called at the office to date, as compared to this time last year. By June 1965, 248 persons and 238 cars had registered.

The chamber learned Vancouver Island Coach Lines is now operating a bus service to Powell River via the Comox Queen ferry.

The chamber has asked for the findings of a recent traffic study committee regarding Comox and Campbell River roads.

The traffic committee of the chamber has learned that extensions to Ryan Road are not included in current plans but may be in the future.

The minister of highways has been contacted by letter, regarding a proposed new express highway and asking that all access roads be located south of the city of Courtenay.

The chamber endorsed the proposal of a regional hospital unless sufficient money is assured to complete St. Joseph's hospital under the original plan outlined by the sisters of St. Ann.

The gavel is made from the bowstap of the old coastal ship "Allice." It was presented to the branch by Jim Bonner, president of Branch 236 Nanaimo. Jack Walford, president of Branch 12 Courtenay, received the gavel on behalf of his members.

Sworn in at the Travelling Gavel ceremonies were zone commander George Pimm, Branch 27, Cumberland, Padre Rev. Jack Leighton, Clayquot Branch; deputy zone commanders Dick Walker, Port Alice for North Island, and John McLean, Qualicum, for North Central, and Alex Valior, secretary from Branch 17.

Referencing to the unavailability of the old structure the little theatre president remarked,

Ladysmith Council

Theatre Group Hopes for Home

LADYSMITH—Ladysmith Little Theatre is gaining ground in its bid to get a lease renewal from town council on the group's theatre and headquarters.

However, before council will take any action a report on the building must be heard from the provincial fire chief marshal who will come to Ladysmith soon.

Theatre president Jack Atkinson Monday reminded council of his group's request early this year for the renewal of the lease for another five years.

The present lease will run out December 1 this year. The building, criticised for its unsightliness on several occasions, will be refurbished by members of the group and Mr. Atkinson said this would only be possible if a reasonable extension of the lease is granted.

He said his group even plans a stucco job, roof repair and inside renovation. He added the building is sound and will last 100 years.

Referencing to the unavailability of the old structure the little theatre president remarked,

"The back of the Ladysmith business section is unsightly, too."

He said as well as producing plays which are well received not only in Ladysmith but in other parts of British Columbia, the local little theatre group promotes other cultural entertainment. He said this year his group hopes to get a puppet show from England to perform at Chemainus and Ladysmith.

Mr. Atkinson stressed a permanent home is vitally important for an amateur theatre and because of the lack of it similar groups in other Vancouver Island Centres have folded.

Mayor Mrs. Kathleen Grouhel told Mr. Atkinson provincial experts had advised her the site would be an ideal spot for a theatre or art centre. She said to the theatre president: "You bring credit to our town and I would like to see a combined theatre and community centre."

The mayor said she could visualize a complex which would serve young and old people and "I hope the whole town would spearhead a fund drive for the renovation of the building."

Mr. Atkinson replied if this is the case his group would forfeit the lease immediately in favor of this plan and be re-marked several years ago the old building started to be a civic centre but only the theatre group stuck to the original proposal.

After Ald. Tom Davidson's remark: "The theatre group should get another one or two-year extension of its lease," council decided to table the matter until the next meeting when the provincial fire marshal's report will be available.

A council committee will investigate the proposed purchase of four city lots as a site for a new fire hall and terms of sale will be discussed with landowner Claire Cowles.

The quoted price is $6,500 and Mayor Grouhel felt although it is an attractive site with which firemen are very happy, the town could not put up the cash immediately. The site for new fire hall would be almost in the middle of the town on Victoria Crescent.

Council also: Learned that building permits for the first six months this year, amounting to $310,502, were the highest ever for any six-month period in the history of the town and for the entire past year the total was $114,000, and contemplated revision of sprinkling regulations next week.

CHEMAINUS—RCMP here are investigating the theft of a half-ton pickup truck from the Chemainus Sawmill parking lot which was found undamaged half way between Saltspring and Chemainus. The vehicle belongs to William Blow of Saltspring who is an employee at the Sawmill.

Campaign chairman Lind Sherlock reported at the recent Kiwanis meeting further donations have been received, bringing the total to $325. Last year the fund realized about $700.

The club plans to hold weekly work parties at Kiwanis Park during the summer in preparation for the club's annual regatta to be held August 22.

DUNCAN—Camp Creina at the Koksilah River near Duncan is the location of an assembly of 80 girl guides and a visiting patrol of girl scouts from Portland, Ore.

The camping event will end July 9 with a three-day pack trip led by Len Baker to Mount Heather near Lake Cowichan. The local girls are supervised by Mrs. K. Jacques, First Cowichan, Mrs. Marjorie Christmas, Second Cowichan, Second Duncan and First Soanemo companies by Mrs. Carol Matton.

Citizenship awards were given to Steven Gergel and Fred Hook, while sports trophies went to Linda Robinson and Kenneth Fussy.

Citizenship awards were given to David Dewes, Ann Vanderhelde, Larry Roy, Wendy Nelson, Case Vanlaarsveld, Jor Ball, Linda Whitbread and Rex Fransen.

DUNCAN—First World War veteran and retired railroad conductor Walter Johnson died at King's Daughters Hospital, June 28. Born at Reykjavik, Iceland, he was 72 years of age.

Women Scribes Convene

NANAIMO—Annual meeting of Canadian Women's Press Club, Vancouver Island, was held here Sunday.

Mrs. Kurtz, retiring president received a vote of thanks for her work during the past year.

Officers elected were: Ben Hamilton, president; Dorothy Tupper, vice-president; Dorothy Fraser, secretary; Dorothy Butler, treasurer; Doris Leach-Ham-Hobbs, historian.

Appreciation was expressed for work done as historian by Ben Hamilton who has a fine collection of clippings and photo graphs connected with club doings.

Mildred Kurtz gave a colorful account of the national convention in Montreal, and Nona Damasko who also attended, confessed that she had committed the Vancouver Island Club to the responsibility of entertaining delegates for a day in Victoria in 1968.

News came from Dorothy Plant who is now dedicating herself to Object Concern, the chief aim of which is to help destitute children in Hong Kong and Viet Nam.

The Bureau Committee, reported applications from the Alberni, Campbell River, Sooke and Victoria, for the $100 offered in a Grade 12 girl who plans to make writing a career.

The next meeting of the club will be held at Campbell River.

Revised Plans May Speed Work

PORT ALBERNI—Ald. J. A. MacFie thinks council and the hospital board may finally be making some headway in expansion of West Coast General Hospital.

He told council Monday that at a recent meeting of the hospital board and B.C. Hospital Insurance officials, "if revised plans are approved, we may possibly make some headway."

The revised plans for expansion and construction of a chronic care wing have come back from the architects.

Ald. MacFie said efforts are being made by the board to arrange a meeting with municipal affairs department officials to clarify legislative changes which affect the setting up of hospital districts.

Prior to the amendments to provincial legislation, the board had applied for the setting up of a hospital district to cover, roughly, that of school district 70, and an area of the west coast.

Around the Island

Trees Tended Babes

FULFORD—Babysitters for working mothers on St. Vincent Island in the West Indies were unheard of until Rev. Father Roland Roberts' mission stepped in.

Women just tied their babies to a tree and left them untended all day, Father Roberts told a group of Fulford residents recently.

SHOWED SLIDES
He met old friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Ahernman and showed slides of his new home on St. Vincent, an island the size of Salt Spring.

The mission, he said, raised funds for a nursery school. Natives earn $1 a day picking arrowroot, he reported. There is much hunger and sickness.

FLIES EVERYWHERE
Open-air butcher shops are full of flies. A common sight is a native walking along the beach with a piece of meat in his hand, surrounded by hungry dogs.

Father Roberts disclosed that he uses rum to light his lamps. It's cheaper than the regular fuel, he explained.

LAKE COWICHAN—Guest artists at the recent meeting of Lake Cowichan Music Club were Charles Palmer, organist of Oak Bay Anglican Church, and a Walter Curragh, oboist with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

The club held its annual election of officers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Grant, and the following slate was elected: Mrs. W. S. Grant, president; Mrs. A. F. Anderson, vice-president; Mrs. Trevor Green, secretary; Trevor Green, program convener, and Mrs. U. Scherberg, social convener.

The club will recess for the summer, and the next meeting will be held either in September or October.

Fireman Says Goodbye

PORT ALBERNI—Dave Jones, member of Port Alberni Volunteer Fire Department for 37 years, retired Tuesday.

Mayor Les Hammer said "he deserved the grateful thanks of all citizens."

Mrs. Jones had the longest service on the volunteer fire brigade with the exception of charter member Frank Hamilton and recently-retired chief, William Venables.

COURTENAY—Gordon David Hagan appeared before Magistrate John Ryland Tuesday and pleaded guilty to six counts of false pretences.

He passed worthless cheques for $12 at Crosby Jewellery, $10 at Kirk Electric and three cheques totalling $35 at Overwaitea.

He was remanded in custody, to July 2, when several other charges will be read.

Also remanded in custody to July 6 was Donat Varin, who is charged with fraud (making a false declaration to social welfare).

He elected trial by Judge and a date for a preliminary hearing will be set July 6.

Two juvenile boys aged 13 and 14 admitted breaking, entry and theft of $60 from a Courtenay home.

The 14-year-old was recently declared unmanageable and told he would be sent away if he did not behave. He was sent to Braman Lake School.

The 13-year-old had committed his first offence and was given nine months probation.

DUNCAN—Funeral service was held Tuesday for Wilson Marshall Iverson, who died in a car accident June 24.

Mr. Iverson was born at Winnipeg, and died at the age of 32. He is survived by son Marshall and daughter Robin, in California, and brother Frederick William Iverson of Islington, Ontario.

LAKE COWICHAN—Final plans for the annual bake sale were made at Monday night's dinner meeting of Lake Cowichan IODE, Stanley Gordon Chapter, held at Riverside Inn. The sale will be held July 9 at Overwaitea in the village, commencing at 2:00 p.m. Convener is Mrs. Joe Mervie.

Mrs. Vic Palmer reported IODE sports shield had been presented to House Four at Lake Cowichan Secondary School. The shield was accepted by House Captain Glen Peace.

Mrs. Palmer said two IODE sports cups were presented at the recent Stanley Gordon Elementary School sports day. Winners were Linda Olson and Clair Denninger.

Visitors at the meeting were Mrs. C. F. Macdonald, of Honeymoon Bay, and Mrs. G. Newton, of London, England.

Following the meeting Mrs. W. F. Crossley showed slides on her trip to England and the continent.

COBBLE HILL—An active member of St. John's Anglican Church here, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Cullison, died at Sawmills Lake, June 28. She was 57 years old.

Born in Dublin, Ireland, she had been a resident of Cobble Hill since 1936, moving to Victoria in 1954 and returning to Cobble Hill in 1961.

Funeral services will take place from St. John's Anglican Church, Cobble Hill, Friday at 2:00 p.m. with Rev. J. G. Harris officiating.

Interment will follow at the family plot in the churchyard cemetery, Hirst Funeral Chapel, Duncan, is in charge of arrangements.

MILL BAY—About 25 pupils of Mill Bay United Church Sunday school, their parents and teachers, gathered at Bamberton Park beach, Monday night for the annual Sunday school picnic.

The Rev. Lea Gillard presented book prizes for top marks in the recent class examinations to: Stephen Lawrence, Sheila Bell and Audrey Bain, junior classes, and Judy Nelson, intermediate class.

DUNCAN—Brian Anderson was given the highest award for proficiency during award ceremonies at Mount Prevost Junior High School last week.

Highest academic award went to Steven Gergel and Fred Hook, while sports trophies went to Linda Robinson and Kenneth Fussy.

Citizenship awards were given to David Dewes, Ann Vanderhelde, Larry Roy, Wendy Nelson, Case Vanlaarsveld, Jor Ball, Linda Whitbread and Rex Fransen.

Fisherman's luck worked in reverse here Tuesday for federal Health Minister Judy LaMarsh when she interrupted coast speaking tour to try her hand at fishing off Oak Bay Marina. Miss LaMarsh failed to get a bite during two-hour try but passing angler gallantly gave her 20-pound spring salmon to prove B.C. fish are there for taking. She was accompanied by Victoria MP David Gross, Reeve Allan Cox of Oak Bay and fishing guide George Moore.—(Jim Ryan)

Saanich Farm

Plant Scourge Belies Fine Setting

To look at the lovely Thompson farm at 3181 Martindale, one would never realize a micro-organism war is there, striking fear in the hearts of Saanich farmers.

The worry was visible Tuesday on the face of John Thompson.

The worm, the golden nematode, has been discovered in the farm's potato crop.

QUARANTINED

While only three acres were found to be infected, the farm has been put under quarantine and authorities have embargoed all shipments from the island of plants or crops with soil.

The golden nematode is known as the "smallpox" of the plant world.

It attacks the fibrous roots of potatoes, tomatoes and eggplants, robbing the roots of nourishment and water, causing starvation and drought.

Mr. Thompson's farm is beautifully situated. Located at the end of Martindale Road, it overlooks the strait and the San Juan Islands.

Between the house and the embankment is a flower garden. In it photographer William Boucher found "the most perfect rose I have ever seen."

Mr. Thompson felt the press had been blowing up the menace right out of proportion.

TOO MUCH PRINTED

"You are looking for sensationalism," he said.

He felt the papers were worrying too many people by printing so much on so small matter.

"By the way, as you leave are you going to sterilize your shoes?" he asked recent visitors. "The government men do."

Meeting Will Discuss Ban on Island Plants

A public meeting, called by provincial government officials, will be held at 8 p.m. today in the farmers' pavilion, Saanich Dominion Experimental Farm, to discuss the ban on island plants because of an outbreak of golden nematode on a Saanich farm.

Restless Hair Seal

Missing Herbie Frisking in Bay?

Is it Herbie that's been frisking in Cadboro Bay lately? Employees of the Undersea Gardens haven't seen him nor hair of their hair seal since he went missing Friday night, but boaters in Cadboro Bay figure they may have spotted him.

A friendly seal was surfacing in the area Sunday and Monday, but whether or not it was Herbie is virtually impossible to ascertain.

Gardens manager Bill Starkey has meanwhile been making plans to replace Herbie, and one of these days a pair of young seals will be back in the pen.

"No more of this bacchanal business," said Mr. Starkey. "Next time, we're getting a boy and a girl."

Herbie had been with the Gardens just under a year before he began getting too restless for his own good. He nipped a diver in the face as well as raising considerable havoc among the flimsy inhabitants of the Gardens.

Mr. Starkey has other worries besides Herbie, however.

Right now he's considering raising octopuses.

"We have four females sitting on eggs right now," he said, "and we're going to put them off by themselves and see if we can't raise the babies."

Judy Lauds Favreau

Humbled by Luck of Draw

By GARY OAKES

The once-proud Guy Favreau now is a humble man "because of the luck of the draw" Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said in Victoria Tuesday.

Miss LaMarsh was hopeful the former justice minister will continue to serve Canada "with his head up."

Mr. Favreau resigned his post Tuesday after the report of the Dorion inquiry was tabled in the House of Commons.

The health minister who, an aide said, is a close friend of Mr. Favreau, called him a man of high integrity and great ability.

Speaking to more than 50

people at a public meeting sponsored by the Victoria Liberal Association, Miss LaMarsh said Mr. Favreau served law for many years "with devotion and love."

Tomorrow, she remarked, the man sought after by politicians will start again, perhaps following a different career.

Referring to the Dorion inquiry and other incidents, the health minister admitted the great Liberal government hasn't been without its faults.

But then, who doesn't break a few eggs while making an omelette?

"Sure we smashed some eggs," Chief Judy disclosed, "but we made a hell of a lot of omelettes."

Miss LaMarsh spent most of the 45-minute address recalling the Liberal-produced omelettes including the new flag, Canada Pension Plan, legislation curbing unemployment.

After four or five years of drift under the Conservatives, Canadians now have a direction and generally a better life under the Liberals, she added.

Athletic Park?

Verdict Coming Soon?

The fate of Victoria's Royal Athletic Park—and indirectly the use to which the city will put its centennial grants—may be disclosed next Tuesday.

At a suggestion by Mayor Wilson, the urban renewal committee decided to open a 9:30 a.m. committee meeting next Tuesday to any alderman outside the committee who "might be interested."

"What about Athletic Park? Are we going ahead with it or not?" asked Ald. M. H. Mooney.

PLANS DELAYED

City Manager Dennis Young indicated that urban renewal plans are being delayed until proposals for rebuilding and extending the fire-stricken sports park are completed.

If Victoria decides to repair the park, there is speculation the city fathers might want to use centennial funds.

A decision to use the birthday money at Royal Athletic Park would spell the end of a proposed intermunicipal centennial project.

One Victoria and two Vancouver yachts are expected to complete the 2,300-mile race in about 17 days.

Competing in the Victoria-Maui race are the 43-foot mast-head sloop Norena of Wight owned by Ronald Ramsey, 3905 Tudor; the 36-foot Lapworth sloop Long Gone owned by J. G. Lines of Vancouver and the 50-foot sloop Velaris owned by Lol Killam of Vancouver.

ODD YEARS

The yachtsmen hope to hold the race every other year in the years when the Tans-Pao race from California to Honolulu is not being sailed.

Friends dropped down to the Inner Harbor Tuesday night to say good-bye to the crew of Norena of Wight while they were waiting for the Vancouver boats to arrive.

Crewing with Skipper Ramsey, who is also the navigator, are Sidney commissioner Douglas Taylor, garage owner John Damgaard, pharmacist George West and tugboat mate Robert Muirhead.

NO NOVICE

Mr. Ramsey is no novice at ocean sailing, having skippered his sloop to Victoria from Europe several years ago.

"It's the trip of a lifetime," said Mr. Taylor. "John Damgaard and George West will fly back from Hawaii and we expect Patrick Leslie and his fiancée Lily Taylor to fly down and sail back with us."

USEFUL STUDY

Everybody in the crew has polished up his seamanship, he said.

"George even read up on how to take out an appendix. We find he's the only one in the crew who has one."

Saanich To Buy Property?

Two pieces of land will be recommended for purchase by Saanich lands and planning committee at the next Saanich council meeting.

An $8,000 property at Cedar Hill Road and Pear Street for road extension and a 31-acre property for McKenzie Avenue extension between Simon Road and Ruby Road were recommended.

The committee also agreed to keep up the search in the Cordova Bay area for a piece of land large enough for a softball diamond.

Dockyard Pay 'Same as Yarrows'

Winch's Rate Claims Criticized by Officer

Harold Winch, M.P., has been talking through his hat about HMC Dockyard wage rates, a senior naval officer said here Tuesday night.

Commodore Superintendent H. A. Winnett reacted sharply to the New Democratic member's charge that the defence department is "quite legally stealing" $1,500 a year from electricians employed at the dockyard, by paying them wages lower than they would earn outside.

"We pay pure maintenance rates, exactly the same as Yarrows and VMD," said the commodore. "We don't pay construction rates because we don't have any construction."

IN COMMONS

Mr. Winch, member for Vancouver East, complained in the Commons Monday night that the men are entitled to the prevailing rate of $3.85 an hour as inside wiremen but the navy insists on classing them as marine electricians at a $3.05 rate.

"These men never go aboard a ship," Mr. Winch said. "Also, electrical linemen in the yard were getting $2.95 an hour while 'just outside the fence' B.C. Hydro linemen were paid $3.42."

The MP appealed to Defence Minister Heffley to remedy the situation.

NO COMMENT

William Ishister of the electricians' union declined to comment on Mr. Winch's charge.

Commodore Winnett said government policy is to follow agreements arrived at between unions and outside firms, and observed that that was hardly stealing.

"Mr. Winch is talking through his hat," he said. "I'm leaving the service in three weeks—I don't care."

Appointment of an independent representative to examine pros and cons of Esquimalt-View Royal amalgamation will be discussed today.

Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell, Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele and View Royal representative Gar Bulmer will meet at 3 p.m.

MOVE AGREED

The move was agreed upon at an in-camera meeting Monday night.

One of the thorny issues so far in amalgamation talks is the proposal by View Royal of a split mill rate, lower than that of Esquimalt, until full services can be supplied to residents of View Royal.

SHOULD SHARE

During talks Monday night, it was pointed out that Esquimalt had certain capital charges in which View Royal should share.

View Royal representatives said there were many people in their district who were on fixed incomes, and an immediate jump to the same mill rate as Esquimalt would create hardship.

STUDY BOUGHT

Reeve A. C. Wurtele said Tuesday night that if the minister approved of the idea of an independent survey, findings would indicate just what sort of a deal there would be for View Royal in amalgamation.

"One man suggested as independent representative is B. C. Bracewell, former deputy minister of municipal affairs."

OTHER PROPOSAL

Only other proposal advanced so far by View Royal would be formation of a town, but ratepayers at a previous meeting voted to bide their time until amalgamation talks could be held with Esquimalt.

Marriage in Sight?

Members of the two tourist-promoting groups and Victoria city council decided to instruct a sub-committee to prepare a report on the comparative aims, functions and finances of each group as a preliminary move toward amalgamation.

Committee chairman Ald. A. C. Savage said the report is expected to be ready for the next combined meeting in three weeks.

Original overtures for amalgamation were made by officials of the bureau last month.

The chamber responded guardedly at the time, and there was little change in attitude Tuesday.

Officials presented a series of letters from other cities in which the two functions are under one authority.

Portfolio Switch Indicated

OTTAWA (CP)—Former Justice minister Guy Favreau is willing to stay on in some other cabinet post, Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday.

Mr. Pearson told the Commons Mr. Favreau submitted his resignation earlier in the day following receipt of the report dealing with charges of influence-peddling by federal ministerial aides.

Mr. Pearson said that, "with deep regret," he will advise Governor-General Verner to accept the resignation.

After the announcement of Mr. Favreau's resignation as minister of justice, there was prolonged applause from the Liberal MPs. Mr. Favreau sat at his desk on Mr. Pearson's left, sipping a glass of water.

Then Mr. Pearson told the House he has asked Mr. Favreau to remain in the government in some other portfolio.

He read a letter from Mr. Favreau agreeing to take some other cabinet post.

Mr. Favreau, Mr. Pearson said, was "a man of unimpeachable integrity and unshaken honor."

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Favreau had entered politics partly as a devoted and unselfish servant of Canada and of his own province, Mr. Pearson said.

Comfort on Longest Day

OTTAWA (CP)—Guy Favreau spent the longest hour of his life Tuesday night as he heard his resignation formally announced in the Commons by Prime Minister Pearson and then listened to four opposition speakers discuss his conduct.

Through it all the 47-year-old Quebec leader of the Liberal party moved about in his green leather chair, sometimes leaning back with a yawn, sometimes cupping his hand in his chin.

He appeared to be making an effort to look relaxed. But his movements were tense and his face drawn. He looked up toward the well-filled galleries, toward the prime minister.

He didn't look directly at Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) when the Conservative member followed the prime minister. It was Mr. Nielsen whose disclosures resulted in the Dorion inquiry.

When the last opposition spokesman, Gilles Giguere (Creditiste-Lapointe) had sat down, several Liberal front-benchers went over to Mr. Favreau to speak to him.

In the main corridor, a battery of photographers and reporters waited.

"Was this the toughest day of your career?" asked a reporter.

Mr. Favreau smiled wearily. "It was."

There is no doubt that Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to Tremblay, offered a $20,000 bribe to "abstract the course of justice" in the case of narcotics smuggling suspect Lucien Rivard.

Guy Rouleau, Montreal Liberal MP and then parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, committed a "reprehensible act" in trying to use his influence to get Rivard out of jail on bail, but his action was not criminal.

There is prima facie evidence of an offence under the Criminal Code. Though the investigator did not say who might have committed it.

Andre Letendre, then and still executive assistant to Favreau, was guilty of "reprehensible" but not "malicious" conduct in intervening with Lamontagne on behalf of Rivard.

Guy Lord, special assistant to the justice minister at the time, acted imprudently but not reprehensibly in putting pressure on Mr. Lamontagne.

The RCMP's investigation methods and Commissioner George McClellan's methods of interpreting the evidence to conjunction with the justice minister are criticized.

The RCMP's use of English-language investigators to question French-speaking persons is described as "extraordinary."

There is no doubt that Rivard's wife and three associates—Eddy Lechasseur, an "Importer" with a criminal record; Robert Gignac, a suspect in a murder case; and Guy Masson, a fringe Liberal politician at Montreal—conspired to obstruct the course of justice.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Dorion report blasted Justice Minister Guy Favreau from his post Tuesday.

It also put the heat on Liberal MP Guy Rouleau, the RCMP, three present or former ministerial aides and others for their conduct in the Lucien Rivard affair.

Without specifying individuals, Chief Justice Frederic Dorion said there are grounds for criminal charges. He named four persons he said had conspired to obstruct justice and said these and others had lied under oath before his royal commission.

Little more than four hours after the searing report was tabled in the Commons, Prime Minister Pearson announced the justice minister's resignation. The opposition had already been demanding just that.

Others may be sacked as a result of the 140-page report. Others may end up in court.

BRIEF, PRESSURE

Mr. Lamontagne said he had been offered a $20,000 bribe and subjected to political pressure from Ottawa to agree to release on bail last summer of the United States on charges of running a $50,000,000 dope-smuggling racket for the Mafia crime syndicate.

Mr. Lamontagne was acting for the U.S. in Rivard's extradition hearings. Rivard broke jail March 2. There is a $15,000 price on his head.

TICKED OFF

The chief justice of the Quebec Superior Court, appointed by the federal government last November to investigate Mr. Lamontagne's charges and Mr. Favreau's and the RCMP's conduct as a result of them, ticked off nearly all the principals.

He said Mr. Favreau should have consulted his departmental advisers before deciding alone last Sept. 18 that charges should not be laid.

"BEEK FACTS"

The minister should have instructed his department "to complete the search for facts."

The report said Mr. Favreau was in a "position of being influenced" by his relations with persons charged by Mr. Lamontagne with having tried to induce him to let Rivard go on bail.

These persons were Raymond Denis, executive assistant to the immigration minister who was fired last October, Mr. Rouleau and Andre Letendre, still executive assistant to Mr. Favreau, and Guy Lord, at that time special assistant to the justice minister.

DIDN'T TELL RCMP

The report said Mr. Favreau hadn't told the RCMP to hunt for other facts which would have completed the information obtained up to Sept. 18.

It also questioned the joint reasoning of Mr. Favreau and RCMP commissioner G. B. McClellan in assessing evidence when they agreed that

B.C. Reverses Stand on Bank

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Premier Bennett said Tuesday that the British Columbia government is prepared to ensure that there is no government investment in the proposed Bank of B.C.

In an interview here the premier said "We won't defy the laws of the land."

"We want the Bank of B.C. and will leave no stone unturned in removing all obstacles to granting the charter."

"We will do nothing that could prevent the charter being granted and are prepared to ensure that there will be no government investment in the bank if this is what the federal government desires."

Mr. Bennett's statement is a reversal of provincial government proposals in the past for investment of up to first 25 per cent then 10 per cent of the share capital of the bank that was first proposed in 1964. The reference to the federal government is Finance Minister Gordon's proposal to forbid provincial government investment in any chartered bank.

Mr. Bennett said in another interview: "We need that bank and I know we'll get that bank."

"When the premier first proposed the Bank of B.C., he said it would have capitalization of more than $50,000,000. Legislation was passed which permitted the government to invest in up to 25 per cent of the share capital of the bank."

Mr. Bennett is here on what he referred to as one of his "incognito visits" to parts of the province. He travelled here on a special car on the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

End Not in Sight Says Instigator

OTTAWA (CP)—Erik Nielsen, the Conservative member from the Yukon who sparked the Dorion inquiry which Tuesday night led to the resignation of Justice Minister Favreau, says the "matter is far from concluded."

The opposition, he said in an interview, will require a lot of answers that were not cleared up in the prime minister's statement. "The administration of justice itself leaves a lot to be desired."

He said, as he did earlier in the House, that Mr. Favreau followed "the only honorable course open to him—and it was the only honorable course the prime minister could follow."

Mr. Nielsen said he expects to "take a very active part" in subsequent debates on the matter.
